Hayakawa plan a Camp Parks hit

A proposal made Friday by U.S. Sen. S.I. Hayakawa (R-Calif.) to import Mexican braceros to work in the fields got an enthusiastic reception from the Border Patrol stationed at Camp Parks.

"Legal importation of farm workers from Mexico to do work that domestic workers will not do is a necessary step," the Republican senator said in a speech to an audience of farmers.

Orville Lewis, assistant chief patrol agent for the Livermore sector of the U.S. Border Patrol, said the controlled importation of laborers would reduce the problem of apprehending illegal aliens. "It would eliminate a lot of our problems. It worked real well before."

The original bracero program, begun in 1951, brought in up to 200,000 Mexican farm workers ("bracero" in Spanish) at peak harvest seasons each year. Largely because of labor opposition to the cheaper labor, Congress let the program expire in 1964 and by 1966 braceros were gone.

Later at a news conference, Hayakawa said he had not worked out a specific proposal, using speeches for "trying out ideas."

A Canadian-born naturalized American, Hayakawa said he had once seen a ballet in Mexico which depicted braceros as strong young men who survived hard work and discrimination in the United States to return to their families with money and experience, having proved themselves as men.

He said it might be modeled on the plan that brings Basque sheepherders to the United States for brief periods, with their pay sent home to their families in Spain.

Lewis, stationed at Camp Parks in Pleasanton, said the arrest rate would probably drop if braceros were again imported. He pointed out that in 1964, last year of the bracero program in California, the arrests of illegal aliens totaled 2,100 persons. Last year, the Border Patrol arrested 60,000, a 30-fold increase in 12 years.

Most aliens come to work, Lewis said Friday. He estimated that less than 5 per cent of those arrested are on welfare.

"But I think the bracero program is a lot more beneficial to the American people than a blanket amnesty program" as had been proposed by some, Lewis offered. When an immigrant receives permission to stay, his immediate family is also allowed in.

Instead of there being six to eight million illegal aliens in the United States as is now estimated, "you would have to multiply that three or four times" if blanket amnesty were granted, he said.

The Livermore sector, headquartered at Camp Parks, arrests about 200 illegal aliens each day from Bakersfield to the Oregon border. Most aliens are transported to El Centro and then deported home.

The Livermore sector is the only one of 21 sectors nationwide not situated on either the Mexican or Canadian border with the U.S.

Daredevil flyer Joe C. Houghes and aerobatic specialist Donna Behrendt stand by the "Super Stearman" used in their "spine - tingling" act.

Valley to see crowd-thrilling duo at Jaycees' annual air spectacular

When Donna Behrendt goes for a Sunday afternoon stroll she walks 50 feet off the ground on the wing of Joe Hughes' biplane.

This will be a feature attraction at today's Livermore Air Show.

She's the only woman in the world to do the stunt in 50 years.

While traveling at 90 miles per hour in the "Super Stearman," Donna climbs out of her seat and performs the "spine-tingling" wing-walk in the sky.

"It took two days to be positively sure that I would do it," said the 19-year-old ballerina about her start in the business. "When I said 'yes, I would try it,' Joe told me 'no, you can do it.'" Ever since that boost of confidence Donna has performed the stunt 40 times.

"Either you're gonna do it or you're not," she said. "The problem is finding a pilot — that's where the talent is."

Who could be that seasoned pilot Donna trusts her life with? He could be no other than the internationally famous Joe C. Hughes, who considers himself the modern day "Great Waldo Pepper."

"I've done many of Pepper's stunts," Hughes said about his 150 performances this year.

Since he started flying in 1968, Hughes has racked up over 5,000 hours in everything from gliders to the Goodyear blimp. He also is a member of the Screen Actors Guild having starred on "You Ask For It," "The Mike Douglas Show," and "Spencer's Pilots," where he actually crashed a biplane while dropping a Hollywood stuntman into a lake.

The lady wing-walker act is something new that Hughes added to his aerobatics this year.

"I thought about it once in 1970," he said. "The next thing I knew I had it rolling."

"I had a lot of applications and about 25 per cent were qualified," Hughes said. "But, Donna fit the ticket. She was serious, self-disciplined and her appearance struck me," he said about the Huntington Beach native who leaps across the runway like Nadia Comenici in a floor exercise.

When asked if she had any advice for future wing-walkers, she said, "They can come to me. I'll give them lessons."

Murray Dist.

School chief finalists face a public test

The first of four finalists for the Murray School District superintendent position will face a "public interview" session Monday night at Frederiksen School.

The initial get acquainted gathering is set for 7:15 p.m. in the Frederiksen School library.

At a closed session Thursday night, Murray trustees narrowed the list of candidates from 12 to four. Dr. Donald Leu, consultant hired by the distict to seek out applicants for the position vacated by Dr. Donald Williams in January, and a professional screening committee had paired the 100-plus applicants to 12 in late April.

The first of the four finalists will meet with acting superintendent Heinz Gewing at Murray district offices starting at 9 a.m. Monday. At 10, the candidate will begin a tour of the district in the company of Local Advisory Committee members Kenneth Whipple, Nielsen principal, and Lorie Christensen.

Following the public meeting at 7:15 p.m., the finalist will be formally interviewed by the board.

This process will be repeated on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday with the public interview - get acquainted sessions at 7:15 each evening at Frederiksen. Members of the LAC will introduce the candidates and assist with questions and comments.

Identities of the four finalists will be announced Monday morning at the Brighton Drive. offices of the Murray School District.

Trustees Thursday night ranked 10 of the finalists so that if one or more withdraws from consideration, the next person in order of ranking might be invited to come to the district.

Leu was to contact and invite the top four starting (this past) Friday morning.

The school board will make the final choice after it has visited the home districts of the two, three or four candidates they still want to consider.

Murray board members will announce their selection in early June.

Jack Orr

Pride made him walk out on Indians

LIVERMORE — "If I dont feel proud of what I'm doing, how can I teach pride?"

Jack Orr, former coordinator of the Livermore Unified School District's fledgling American Indian Center, says it was pride more than a pay dispute that led him to turn in his keys to the center and take home his stone grinders, handmade cradle board, jewelry and other artifacts he had been keeping at the center on North Livermore Avenue.

Far from disappearing quietly, the 30 - year - old Indian culture expert says he had spoken with Superintendent of Schools Leo Croce and Assistant Superintendent Dr. Justin Bardellini of his impending departure. He also notified Barbara Karr, then chairperson of the parent committee which directs the center, and packed up his belongings in the presence of parents.

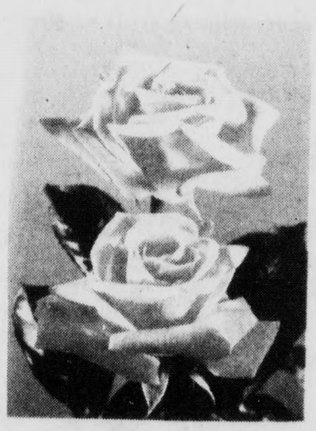

One issue, says Orr, was salary — next year's, not this year's. "The parent committee wanted to give me $12,000 a year. I said I could live with $10,000, although coordinators of other programs are making as much as $25,000 a year," Orr told The Times. "But when I brought in the parent committee's budget to Bardellini for approval, he told me to take out the raise."

Orr had been making $705 a month from his hiring date in November until his resignation in February. He contends he was hired with the understanding he would receive a substantial raise next year if the program expanded — which it has, by about one - third.

The program is expected to be funded next year to the tune of at least $46,000. The funds go for rent,

Marble tourney

We're not talking small potatoes here

"Maybe marbles will put Livermore on the map!"

Bob Yamamoto spent the day after his marbles tournament figuring out the wording on three plaques and a trophy he's awarding to the winners. And figuring out how far he can go in promoting a "world championship" marbles match at his Livermore Saloon on First Street.

"I'm not a bartender — I'm a promoter," Yamamoto admitted as he eagerly drew up plans for future matches. On Thursday night he held a tournament in which 20 people, including several women, competed. Most successful were two out - of - town players whose real forte is playing pool for big stakes. They were Lenny Chin of Hayward, first place, and Pete Romero of San Jose, runnerup. Livermore residents Danny Deverill and Gil Dyer placed third and fourth.

Best female marble player was Joyce Salter of Livermore, known also as a good pool shooter, bowler and softball player. Salter gave Dyer a run for his money in the semi - finals but lost out by two marbles.

In Sunday morning quarterback fashion, Yamamoto analyzed the winners' styles: "The technique is like shooting pool, controlling the velocity of your shooter, spinning it so when it hits your shooter remains in the ring.

"They haven't played marbles for thirty, forty years but they have the technique."

His wife, Monica, reveals their customers' faces "lit up like little boys" when they heard of the marbles tournament. The contest was played in a five - foot circle drawn with chalk on the saloon's red rug. On their hands and knees, the 20 contestants angled around the circle trying to ignore the cries of "No fudging!" "Right down the middle!" "Awwww, too baaaad!"

People who came in just to watch stayed to play. Others kept flicking their thumbs in the time - honored

In for scolding, he steals $100

PLEASANTON — A 13-year-old Harvest Park student was able to take $100 from the school's unlocked safe, pass the money to a companion and give away $10 — because he was sent to the assistant principal's office, next to the safe, for disciplinary action.

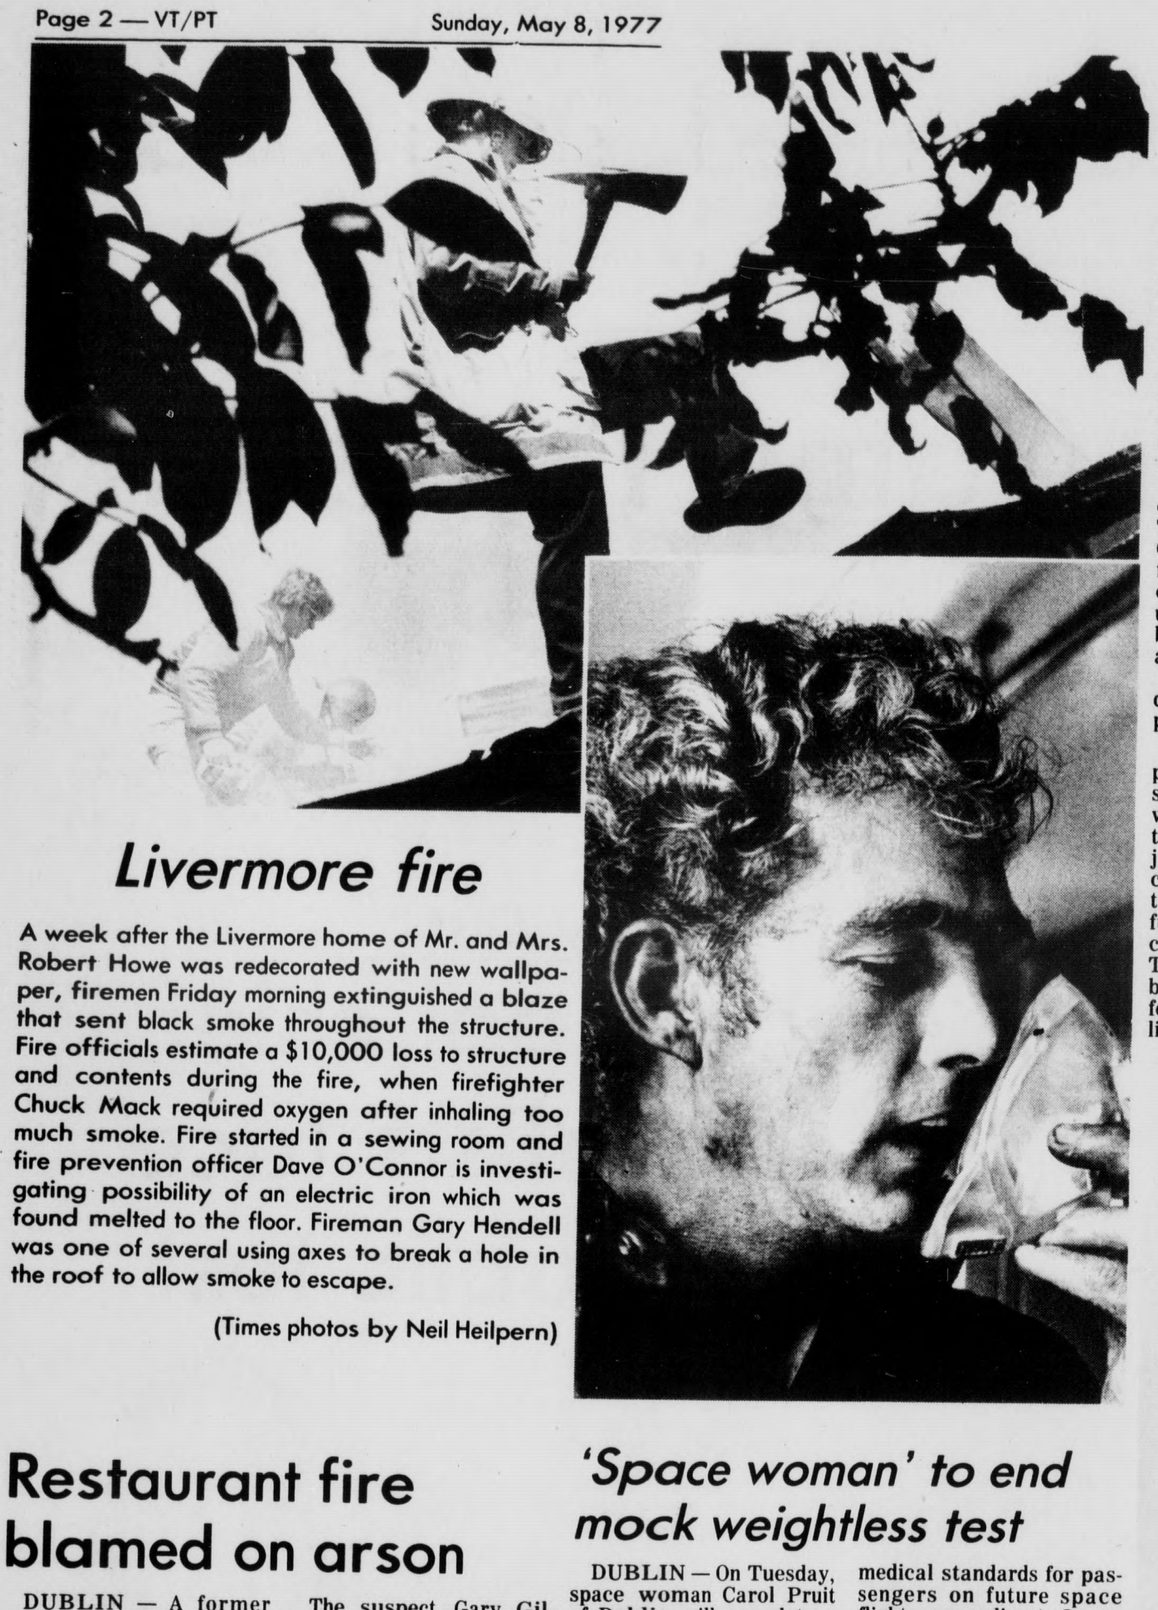

According to police reports, the youth entered the assistant principal's office Thursday morning to be disciplined for an undisclosed offense. The open safe was in an adjoining room.

A school employe appeared moments later and saw the student near the safe. She counted the money and discovered $100 was missing.

Again summoned to the office, the youth admitted taking the money, which he thought was five or six dollars, to buy a Mothers Day present.

He had given the loot to a companion. While the two counted the money in the boys' room, a third youth appeared and was given $10 by the first suspect. School officials said the suspect was "very generous" by nature.

All the money was finally recovered. Both youths were suspended from school and arrested. The first was booked on suspicion of theft; the second on suspicion of receiving stolen property. The youth that was given $10 was released, having not known the money was stolen.

Livermore fire

A week after the Livermore home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Howe was redecorated with new wallpaper, firemen Friday morning extinguished a blaze that sent black smoke throughout the structure. Fire officials estimate a $10,000 loss to structure and contents during the fire, when firefighter Chuck Mack required oxygen after inhaling too much smoke. Fire started in a sewing room and fire prevention officer Dave O'Connor is investigating possibility of an electric iron which was found melted to the floor. Fireman Gary Hendell was one of several using axes to break a hole in the roof to allow smoke to escape.

Heritage Guild project

Parks review museum plans

LIVERMORE — When the Heritage Guild's project to restore the Duarte Garage as an agricultural and transportation museum failed to win a place on a state park funding list, Livermore Area Recreation and Parks District officials agreed to take a routine look at the proposal.

LARPD General Manager Bill Payne told The Times he has asked Guild Chairwoman Janet Newton for more information so he can put the proposed museum on a list of projects being considered by his agency.

Also on the list are requests for a skateboard park and motorcycle park.

The Guild had approached city council for sponsorship, but council was unaware until deadline time they were required to join LARPD in a dual agency allocation request for the community to get any funds. Deadline for application of LARPD's list was Tuesday and council members found themselves forced to concur with the list on Monday.

LARPD had asked for historic preservation monies for its Ravenswood Mansion restoration project.

Council sought a deadline extension from Sacramento and an emergency meeting with LARPD. However, Payne said, his directors were polled and decision was made not to "possibly upset the apple cart on Proposition 2 by asking for extensions and changes after the deadline."

Newton was disappointed, after receiving assurances from council, county supervisors and county parks advisory commission that approximately $50,000 would go in her group's direction.

Payne asked her for estimated project costs, how much of that required public funding, a phased development timetable, specific uses of the rennovated building, who would be responsible for operation and maintenance and what the ongoing costs would be.

"When we get a response we will go through our normal process," said Payne, "including staff evaluation, facilities committee, review by the board of directors, then to the city."

"Then we will know if there is need for a joint committee," he added. "My evaluation of their request will have to be strictly on the same basis of other proposed projects."

Newton said much of the information will be available after the Guild meets Thursday with Sacramento architect Bob McCabe, who is working on both the garage and Ravenswood projects.

In the meantime, she has sent Payne a packet of documents and correspondence completed for dealings with the county.

Discussing costs, she expressed both pessimism and optimism. Concern with unstable and rising insurance costs were paired with the outlook of a low maintenance cost because of the nature of the building.

She has invited Payne and other LARPD officials to attend the 7:30 p.m. Thursday meeting at the public library.

'Gray water buffs warned on mosquitoes

Saving water to fight back at the drought can have some debilitating side effects.

Take those stalwart souls who save "gray water," the would-be runoff from tubs and sinks that is destined for the dying daisy patch.

If not used promptly, they draw mosquitoes.

County mosquito abatement officials are warning water conservationists to use "gray water" within a week or to take some precautionary steps to ward off swarms of the pesky biters.

Spray the back yard storage container with a light coat of diesel oil or kerosene when you top it with the day's collection.

If that appears impractical, cover the container with a screen.

Officials report "quite a few calls" to the district with complaints of mosquito swarms getting the best of conservation efforts.

Restaurant fire blamed on arson

DUBLIN — A former manager of Howard Johnson's Restaurant was arrested Friday morning on suspicion of starting a fire that caused an estimated $1,000 damage in the restaurant, deputies said Friday.

Three separate fires that fed on napkins and plastic goods in a hallway between the kitchen and banquet room were extinguished in about 20 minutes. Smoke reportedly damaged a telephone switchboard and tables at the Regional Street restaurant.

The suspect, Gary Gilbert, 30, of 1200 Lakeshore Drive in Oakland, was arrested at the scene. Deputies said he had in his pocket fuses to the restaurant's fire alarm, which were apparently removed prior to the blaze. The fire alarm was inoperable when flames broke out.

An arson-set fire at the restaurant caused approximately $500 damage April 2. There was no evidence the two incidents are related.

Gilbert was fired as manager of the establishment in December over a dispute with management, deputies said. He was booked on suspicion of burglary, tampering with a fire alarm, and arson.

'Space woman' to end mock weightless test

DUBLIN — On Tuesday, space woman Carol Pruit of Dublin will complete a nine-day stint of total bedrest that simulated weightlessness as part of a NASA-Ames Research Center project at Moffett Field in Mountain View, California.

Nine other volunteer women were in the test. None of the women had ever been involved in space projects before. They come from all walks of life.

During the past month, the women were subjects of other studies related to the NASA-Ames project. The project's aim is to help set medical standards for passengers on future space flights, according to Larry King of Ames public affairs office.

Six basic experiments were used to test the women. They involved a flight simulator, centrifuge, exercycle, lower body negative pressure (LBNP), lean body mass and short term memory search task.

The centrifuge rides simulated reentry into Earth's atmosphere.

Dr. Harold Sandler is the principal investigator with the project.

Sup. Hasseltine questions merit

Huge fire budget hikes asked

DANVILLE — Some East Bay fire districts will be taking a more sizeable chomp out of the tax cake this year if their proposed budgets are approved July 19.

Eric Hasseltine discussed the issue during a liaison meeting yesterday morning at the Danville Hotel Restaurant and Saloon. Hasseltine is Contra Costa County's fifth district supervisor.

"Some of the proposed increases are totally unacceptable," Hasseltine said. "I don't know of any huge population increases in the 13 fire district areas that would justify such budget escalation in a year's time."

Bethel Island fire district proposes an increase of 44 per cent; Brentwood 34 per cent, Byron 64, Contra Costa Consolidated Fire District 13, Crockett - Carquinez 70, East Bay Regional Parks 25, Moraga 19.

Oakley 39 per cent, Orinda 24 per cent, Pinole 18.5, Riverview 10, Tassajara Fire District 53.6, West County 25.

Since Danville and the Contra Costa County portion of San Ramon are unincorporated, their fire protection agencies are in a separate category.

Danville's Fire Chief, Michael Blodgett, said their proposed budget increase was 14 per cent. He said the board of directors who control Danville's fire district will approve or disapprove the proposed budget increase at a final hearing July 25.

San Ramon in Contra Costa County proposed a 19 per cent increase, according to Chief William J. Ferira.

Hasseltine said he had talked to fire district Chiefs about the dilemma.

"According to them, state mandated programs aimed at fire districts caused a lot of the problem," Hasseltine reported. "It's the same old story of the state saying something has to be done at the local level without providing funds or even making certain funds are available locally to carry out the directive."

One particular mandate directed toward fire districts relates to increasing workmen's compensation coverage, fire chiefs told Hasseltine.

"The concept sounded good in principle, but when fire district representatives went to get the extra coverage they found out rates had doubled and tripled," Hasseltine explained. "Since there is no funding available for this added cost, it had to be put in the proposed budget."

Hasseltine said he would like to have more information about fire district problems plus have each fire chief reevaluate their status before the July 19 deadline.

Hasseltine said the 10 per cent increase for Riverview and 13 per cent for Contra Costa Consolidated was realistic.

CCC planner stresses need for industry

MARTINEZ — Contra Costa's economic future depends on continued industrial growth, yet the county's chief growth industry is residential construction.

That paradox appeared Tueday in a report to County Administrator Arthur Will from Planning Director Anthony Dehaesus.

Dehaesus' report summarized the March 8 hearing before the Board of Supervisors on industrial development in the county and went on to outline options for encouraging industrial growwth.

Chief among those options was to "ensure that the lands designated for industry are adequately protected to prevent intrusions of non-compatible land uses nearby."

Dehaesus warned of creating "a constitutency that will object to future industrial development nearby."

He recommended that the county reject attempts to subdivide for residential use lands that are designated for industrial development.

Dehaesus cited two examples of residentially developing industrial lands — the Bishop Ranch property in San Ramon and the American Smelting and Refining Co.'s property in Selby.

Apropos Bishop Ranch, Dehaesus said (portions of) "this residential land will be developed and occupied before any industrial plants are constructed on the land zoned for controlled manufacturing."

"This constituency might object, delay and cause the prevention of development if adequate buffering is not designed now," he said of Bishop Ranch.

American Smelting's deep-water channel, proximity to railroads and closeness to other industrial lands mandate its preservation for industrial purposes. Yet its bay frontage, oustanding vistas and easy access to the freeway make it an attractive site for an intensive, urban residential and small retail shop development, Dehaesus said.

Chairman Warren Boggess of Concordd said there is little doubt the residential taxpayer is assuming an increasing burden.

"The Dow decision to abandon its Solano County plans was a real shock to this county. The problem is due to the stagnation of new industry coming into the county," he said.

He called for a "very great emphasis on new industry to counter this very serious shift to a residential county."

Supervisor Robert Schroder of Walnut Creek linked the discussion to the county's contribution to the Contra Costa Development Assocation's budget. He said some strict performance requirements relative to attracting industry would be written into the contract. The association is funded partly from county taxes, and partly by business and industries.

Dehaesus outlined several other options, recommending that he be designated the person responsible for coordinating industrial development in the unincorporated areas.

Other options suggested by Dehaesus included:

--Ensure an adequate amount of land designated and zoned for industry both wwithin the cities the unincorporated areas.

--Have a clear and reasonable county permit procedure.

--Hold the line one taxes.

Society takes good measure of Lab man

LIVERMORE — A Lawrence Livermmre Laboratory "metrologist" — one who studies the science of measurement — will receive the 1977 Society of Manufacturing Engineers Research Medal tomorrow night at ceremonies in Dearborn, Mich.

James B. Bryan will be awarded the gold medal and engraved citation honor due to his work in pioneering several innovations that have allowed for extremely precise measurements in lathe work.

The citation reads: "James B. Bryan, who has given us — literally and figuratively — a new dimension in our ability to manufacture the products of an increasingly complex technology."

Under Bryan's direction, the Lawrence Lab metrology group has developed the world's most accurate lathes and discovered that noise and relatively small changes in temperature can seriously affect the accuracy of machining tools. The group has also devised new methods for measuring very accurately the sizes and shapes of objects.

Bryan became a "metrologist" quite by accident.

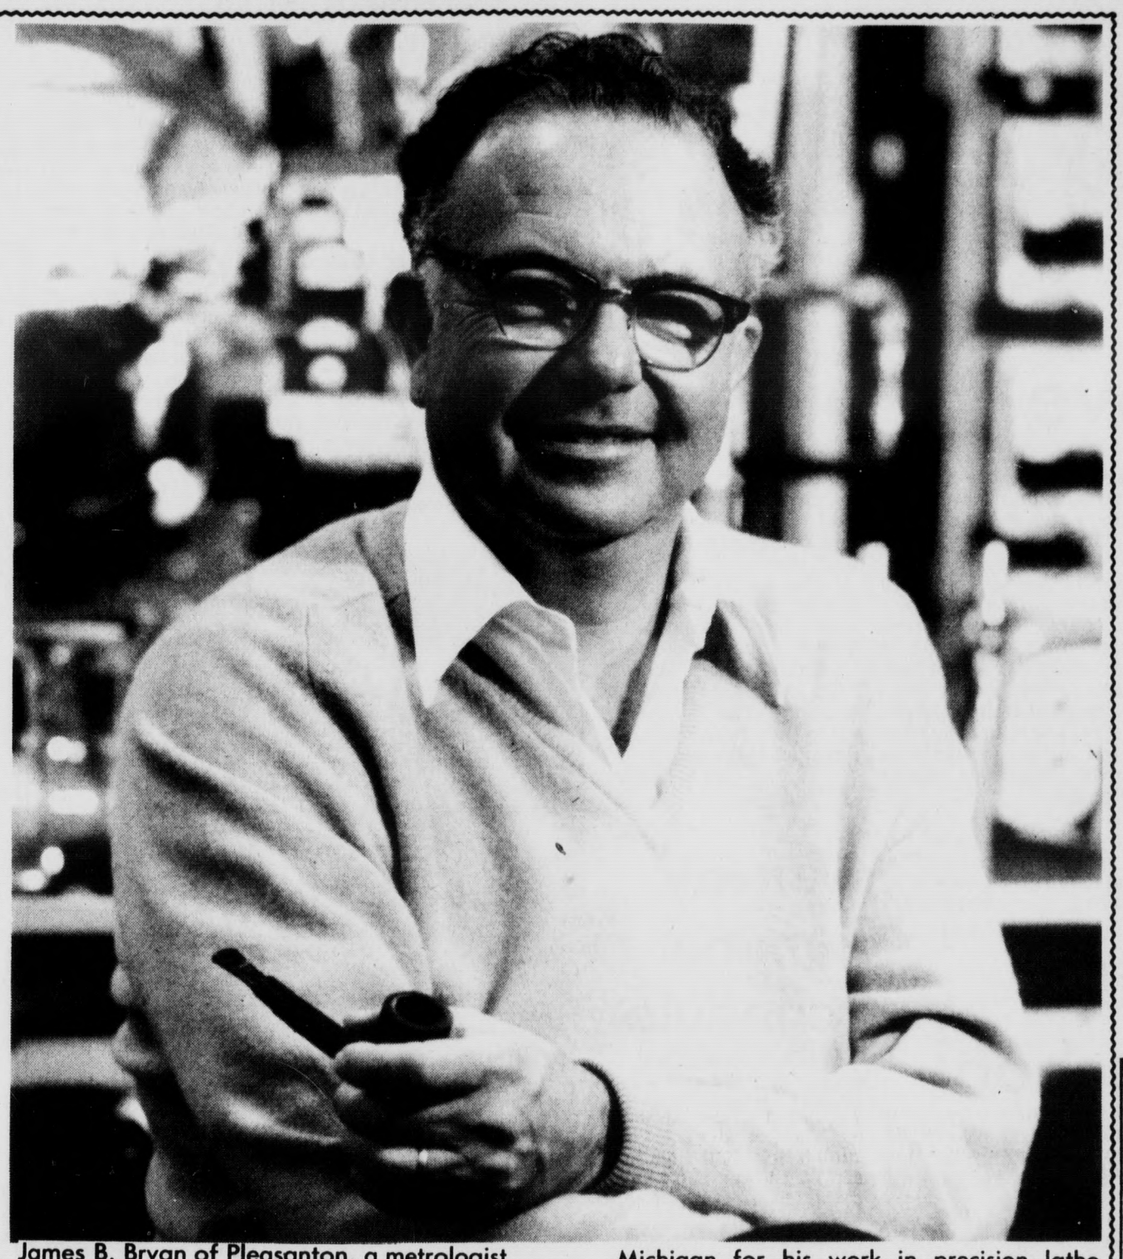

He joined LLL 22 years ago as a mechanical engineer. During his first year, Bryan was chosen to head a group seeking to solve some problems in measurement and machining — fields about which Bryan knew very little.

While reading up on the subjects in the library, Bryan found a dusty volume that described advanced measuring techniques compiled by Dr. R.H. Rolt, an English physicist, in the early 1900s. These old techniques were the answers to Bryan's sophisticated problems.

Enchanted with Rolt's foresight and clever work, Bryan began applying precision concepts to a variety of problems at LLL. He is now credited with sparking a renaissance in metrology and many subsequent advances in machine tool accuracy.

Explaining the reason for Bryan's receiving the SME Research Medal, SME said Bryan has pioneered "more innovations in the field of manufacturing metrology. . .than any other one person in this country. . .(U)ntil the advent of his research, manufacturing metrology was a subject badly neglected in both the teaching and practice of manufacturing engineering in the U.S."

Chief among Bryan's accomplishments are two computer - programmed "diamond-turning" lathes at LLL that can cut parts to within 2 millionths of an inch of the specificiations. The objects are cut with a diamond cutting edge.

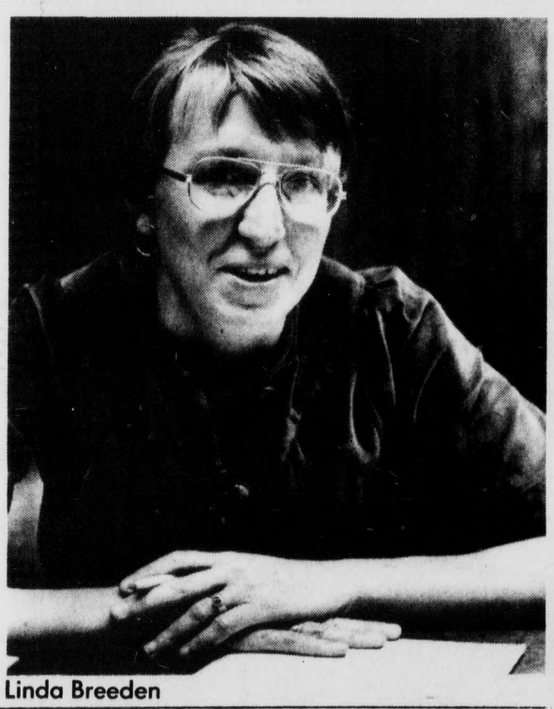

James B. Bryan of Pleasanton, a metrologist at the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory, will receive a gold medal award tomorrow in Michigan for his work in precision lathe measurements.

Livermore's assistant attorney

LIVERMORE — Making the transition from congressional law research and IRS estate tax settlements may prove interesting for new assistant city attorney Linda L. Breeden.

"My background has been in public and federal law," Breeden told The Times Friday when she started her new position. "I'm anxious to look at the local level."

Linda Breeden

She noted that working on the federal level of law she was dealing with broad generalities and would now get to a specific level filled with lots of facts and some controversy.

Breeden, who lives with her husband Jim in Oakland, will assist City Attorney Gary Reiners at a salary of $1,450 a month. She headed a list of 65 applicants for the position.

She received her A.B. in 1966 from Stanford University, and her J.D. Degree in 1969 from the Hastings College of Law.

She was admitted to the California State Bar in Jan., 1970 and is a member of the California women Lawyers.

For the past year she has been freelancing her legal expertise, arguing and drafting state appellate briefs for private Bay Area law firms. She also drafted assorted private practice documents including leases and wills.

While with Congressional Research Service in Washington, D.C., Breeden specialized in labor and environmental law.

"We worked with congressional staffs and committee staffs who were aware of political implications of proposed legislation," she said, "but they needed information on the legal implications. Would it hold up in court?"

"Often they wanted to know how a particular federal law would affect their specific district or a town in their district," she said. Her work also involved reviewing impact of case law on federal and state legislation and the administration of federal programs.

While with the IRS office in Boston, she learned about the makeup of small corporations.

Included in her research and published work are matters dealing with labor-management relations of public employes, comparing case law with the attorney general's view of the Freedom of Information Act, farmworker legislation and a comparison of children's rights in the U.S. and Scandinavian countries.

She isn't exactly new to this neck of the woods, though. Her husband's parents own the Sunol Christmas Tree farm.

The Illinois native spent most of her life in Arizona.

Volunteer aide Pat Emerick and some of her admirers.

Pleasanton's Alisal School

Pupils give 'love' to aides

Two mothers, one a classroom volunteer who has given of herself every week of school for three years, and the other a first grade teacher beloved by student and parent alike, were honored earlier this week at Alisal School in Pleasanton.

The message and gift of flowers to Pat Emerick bore a simple but timely theme— "Happy Mothers Day Mrs. Emerick, you're special to us. Thank you for your help."

The thought and flowers offered to first grade teacher Barbara Corrin were summed up by this little tyke's response, "We all love you. You are just like a mom."

Added a parent of one of Mrs. Corrin's students, "We parents quite often forget that teachers have our children a great deal of the day. We take their responsibility toward our children for granted."

Both presentations, the earlier one to Pat Emerick, were directed at not only their care and concern in the classroom but the good feelings and thoughtfullness both offer.

Mrs. Emerick, mother of four children, one of whom is a student at Harvest Park School, has devoted four mornings a week for three years at Alisal.

Why?

"I just like kids," responds the soft-spoken Pleasanton resident of seven years. She also does mathematics tutoring at Harvest Park two afternoons a week.

The presentation of flowers, replete with hand - lettered signs, to Barbara Corrin Friday was no less poignant.

A "committee" of four of her students surprised her in the Alisal School office and then, after a very brief recess, the whole class joined in the "thank you."

One happy-faced child said, "She's neat, super ... and sometimes she gets mad, too!"

"She is my very best teacher I ever had in my whole life," this from a freckle - faced six-year old.

Joining in the salute to "The Teaching Mom of the Year at Alisal" were parents and John Bristow, principal at the school.

'Kidsville' is big hit for Almond Ave. school

LIVERMORE — While all the squabbling was going on over Geldertown, another new town was creeping into existence right under the city fathers' noses.

It's Kidsville, now fully entrenched at Almond Avenue School. In Dave Cooper's fifth grade classroom, commerce goes on every day as students earn a "salary" in class currency by doing their work. They spend it at the bakery, art shop, plant store, junk shop or sock it away in the Kidsville Bank.

A "town council" composed of all the students sets fines for broken rules or work not completed. Each student pays out a weekly rent and tax to their government. If they have not earned enough to pay their fixed charges they go on "welfare" for the week.

As members of the town desire to go into business, they apply to the town council. If their business application is accepted, they pay a business license, make a capital investment and open a business account with the bank. They pay 10 per cent of their profit to the govenment.

Every Wednesday, the International Junk Shop auctions off unwanted goods. Their fee is 20 per cent of the winning bid.

Kidsville was officially "incorporated" Thursday night at a gathering attended by students, parents and special guests. Participants got the economic ball rolling by being given $15 in Kidsville currency by Mayor Joel Harte.

Trustees back handicapped aids, ramps, but cost shy

Trustees of the South County Community College District are on record as agreeing in concept with the elimination of architectural barriers against the handicapped, but not at the expense of local taxpayers.

The board, meeting earlier this week, passed a motion to write their congressmen to this effect, with a copy to Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano, who recently signed legislation on behalf of the handicapped.

The motion also points out the board does not concur with the concept that changes in curriculum and structure of existing facilities, as mandated by federal legislation, be funded from local property taxes.

Trustees also agreed that mandated federal legislation requiring increased monetary outlay from property taxes should be funded from federal governmental revenues.

The action came after Dr. Reed L. Buffington, president of Chabot College, told the board that the legislation signed by Califano would require the college to make structural changes on its Hayward campus within a three-year period.

"The worst that could happen is for us to have to build five elevators at a cost of $500,000," he said.

Trustee E.J. Chinn suggested the letter to Califano, saying the district would be glad to build the elevators if Califano would send the money for such a project or if it would not be necessary to place an additional tax burden on local residents. He explained he was not against additional facilities for the handicapped, but felt for the federal government to come up with "this kind of directive is unthinkable."

Education briefing set for San Ramon parents

SAN RAMON— The Open Education Alternatives program is having an orientation meeting for all interested parents of children in the elementary grades Wednesday, May 18 at 7:30 p.m. at Neil Armstrong School on Calais Drive.

Now in its second year, the San Ramon Valley Unified School District alternative program stresses the learning process, not the product of learning.

The program at Neil Armstrong School provides a workshop setting where students, parents, and other adults can capitalize on the interests and natural curiosity of students, making school relevant.

School officials say the program is aimed at making "human relationships important. Students are encouraged to share their knowledge and skills with each other. Time is spent helping students cope with their emotions."

The program is structured so that students are given a chance to develop self - discipline and a sense of responsibility for themselves and others.

Parents that would like further information may call Nancy Larson, 828-6132, or Armstong School after 2 p.m., 828-8118.

They traveled 11,000 miles for a camel

Forget Europe! Where on that continent can you get an elephant ride or bed down on the roof of an ancient caravanserai?

Jack and Barbara McClure will take armchair globetrotters on an 11,000 mile odyssey through Iran, Afghanistan and Pakistan at the Sierra Club's Wednesday, May 11 meeting at Portola Avenue School (2451 Portola Ave., Livermore) at 7:30 p.m.

Pleasanton residents, the McClures packed three months worth of camping equipment into backpacks and left on their dusty journey down Islamic Asia's well-worn roads from London in September.

Fifteen hundred slides later, the McClures landed back in the valley with a lifetime's memories stored on film and in diaries. "And on that whole trip, I'll bet I could count on two hands the number of other tourists we saw," says Jack. "Man, what an adventure!"

A physicist at the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory, Jack delegated the responsibility of keeping a daily journal to Barbara, who is an advertising representative for The Independent. Using a Canon FTB and an Olympus RC, Jack shot over 40 rolls of film.

Veteran backpackers, the McClures nonetheless met with raised eyebrows and discouragement in their early communications with the London-based Exodus Expeditions, which was organizing the trip.

"We were told that it would really be a hard trip," recalls Barbara. "Most of the people who travel overland with this company are about 21 years old — and we're twice that age."

Undaunted, the McClures decided to go ahead with the trip, their first abroad together. Departure was set for September 11 from London, and Europe was soon left behind. Traveling with the couple were 26 other adventurers, ranging in age from 19 to 30.

Heading the expedition were two experienced drivers, one a Welshman and the other a South African. Food, water, clothing and travelers alike were somehow squeezed into a hardy truck, with everyone taking turns cooking and cleaning up. "Whoever cooked had to do the shopping in the villages," explains Barbara. "We avoided meat, but the bread and fresh vegetables were wonderful."

Major cities in all three countries were avoided, says Jack, and routes were planned primarily by way of the old camel trails. "The caravanserais, or camel stops, are every 20 miles or so, which is the distance a camel can travel in a day," explains Jack.

The 15 days in Iran took the McClures to the famed Persepolis, where Darius reigned supreme over a vast empire, only to have his legendary city razed to the ground by Alexander the Great.

From Iran (once called Persia), the Pleasanton couple discovered such vagaries about their next stop of Aghanistan as scalpers "who really milk tourists by charging $15 a day for a guide "to the valley of Bamian, which shields towering Buddhas carved into sandstone cliffs.

"Bamian is way off the beaten track," describes Jack, adding that it was one of his favorites stops. "The people were very friendly and it had a nice aura about it. The farmers had kerosine lamps lining the road that they lit at night."

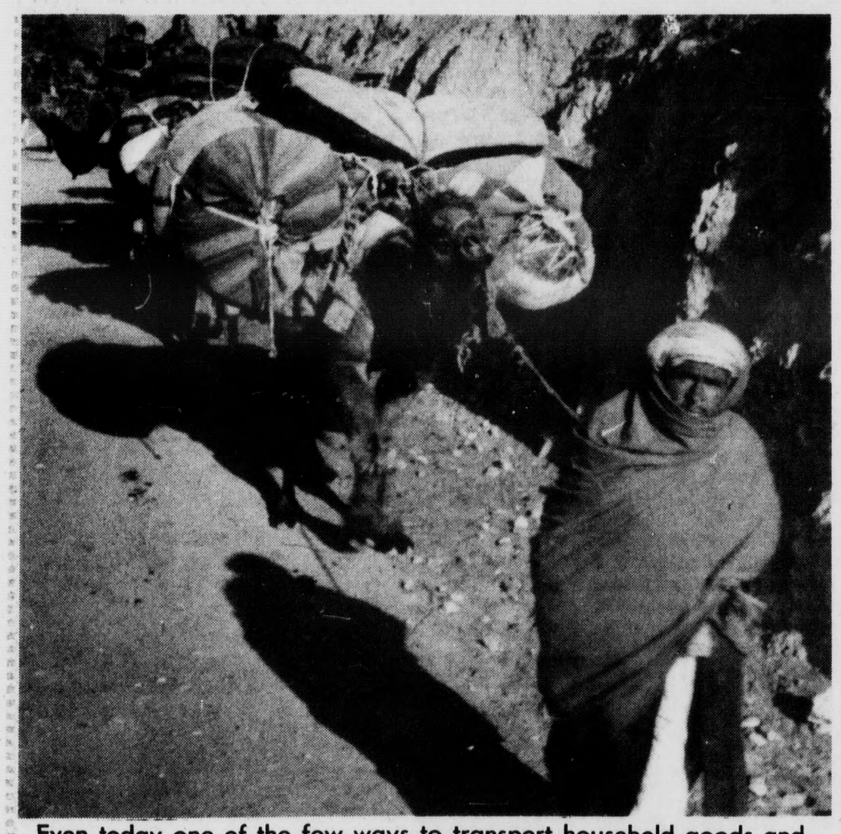

Compared to the quiet of Bamian, Afghanistan's capital is "nerve-wracking," according to Jack. "Kabul is just one big market place."

Politics played a part in the McClures' sometimes unhappy feelings towards Pakistan, the last country on the itinerary. "The people are very poor there, and you get the feeling that there are is trouble between India and Pakistan," declares the physicist. "Not only that, but there is a bad feeling towards white people — some guy threw a small rock at me, and we were warned not to go out alone in certain areas."

But the overall memories cherished by the McClures are happy ones. "What's thrilling is the fact that you're so close to the road and the people traveling the way we did," exclaims Jack. "When we stopped for lunch people would talk to us, sometimes invite us to their homes. Once we all got rides on an elephant — anything could happen!"

If you've got itchy feet for travel, don't miss the Wednesday slide show. The McClures will also go into detail about how others can plan a similar trip.

Luggage do's and don'ts

With summer just around the corner, air travel vacations are in the offing. Here is a list of Do's and Dont's to assure that your baggage arrives as happily as you do:

DO label your luggage clearly with name and address, inside and out. DON'T overpack since this can damage your luggage or cause it to open at an inconvenient moment.

DO carry your valuables, cameras, medicines and other essential items in your carry-on luggage. If your have large or fragile packages, ask the airline for boxes which will insure safer handling.

DO always lock your luggage and never leave it unattended, which is a serious offense punishable by fines in some countries.

Does the bike fit the child?

Too many parents may rush out to buy children's bicycles for the summer vacation, without checking first to see if the bike fits the child properly. The wrong size frame, warns the Easter Seal Society, can lead to painful, sometimes disabling, injuries.

"Parents buy a bike hoping to save money because their child can use it while he or she grows into it," says Easter Seals. "What can and often does happen is that the child is forced into an emergency stop, where his feet must leave the pedals and touch the ground to halt. If the bike is too big, the top tube can smash into the pelvic area.

"Allow at least ½-inch clearance between the top tube and crotch while the child is straddling the bike in stocking feet on the ground. The same rule holds for adults."

Tony's family

To the Friends of Tony Thomas:
We wish to thank all of you who did so much to make this sad time in our lives a little easier to bear. We appreciate the gifts of flowers, plants, letters and cards; the telephone calls and the visits; the meals so carefully and lovingly prepared.

The efforts to make Holmes and Vancouver a safe crossing are sustaining us in this period of adjustment. We will continue to work hard so that the light at this intersection becomes a reality. We are also pledged to support efforts to make all crossings in Livermore safe.

Tony Thomas lived life to the fullest, each and every minute. The many kindnesses received by his family are a tribute to a child who made a difference in the life of each person he touched.

Our thanks and our love to each and every one of you,
Jeanne, Stan and Suzy Thomas

History preserved

Elsewhere on this page there appears the admonition of David Eller of Livermore who reminds us that May 8 - 14 is "National Historic Preservation Week." Mr. Eller suggests that preservation of our national (and community) trust is "everyone's responsibility."

We agree. This newspaper has always placed protection and restoration of our historic edifices high on our own list; we believe it is a campaign dear to the hearts of most Valley residents,.

It is also a campaign not without considerable cost ... often well beyond the community's ability. The secret then is to search out those particular buildings and places which — because they have survived generations past and because they promise substance for generations still to come — deserve our attention, and our cash.

The emotion of historical groups, which waver from ancient adobe to old church to rundown shack without much logic, tend to wear down the enthusiasm of private persons and public agencies ... all of which have plenty of other demands on their generosity.

These lovers of history would serve us better by first getting their own act together; agreeing on a list of preservation priorities throughout our several communities; and then mounting one concerted effort to save and restore those precious places in order of their importance, and their future use.

National Historic Preservation Week is a good a time as any to undertake such an effort.

Highway barons

Recapture by the Legislature of its authority over the building of state highways appeared to have moved a step closer last month with the release of a report by the state's Little Hoover Commission.

Determination of highway projects was delegated away by the lawmakers in 1921 with the creation of the highway Commission. Its seven members, appointed by the governor, were given the power to adopt routes and allocate construction funds.

Under that system the Department of Public Works had the responsibility for carrying out the highway policies formed by the commission. A reorganization under Governor Ronald Reagan broadened the goals of the department to include overall transportation planning and changed the name of the agency to the Department of Transportation, abbreviated to CalTrans. Also, at the time, there was created an additonal State Transportation Board which was charged with the development of a master state transportation plan.

With the advent of the administration of Governor Jerry Brown there came a traumatic shift of emphasis from roadbuilding to efforts to develop mass transit and other alternatives to highway travel. The drastic cutback of new highway projects has brought angry reaction from the Legislature in response to complaints from constituents throughout the state. This has led to demands in the form of legislation for the restoration of the Legislature's authority over highway programs. Foremost in the fray is Walter Ingalls, chairman of the Assembly Transportation Committee.

The Hoover report appears to confirm the need for change for it notes the Highway Commission is ineffective and the Transportation Board has failed. It charges that CalTrans under its director, Adrianna Gianturco, has usurped the functions of the two boards by taking over the preparation of the state transportation plan and "unilaterally contravening the commission's budgetary decisions" for highway projects.

It said the commission is so weak it "can no longer effectively exercise its role as a transportation policy-setting entity."

The report also charged CalTrans with mismanagement declaring the department to be "poorly organized," has failed to outline division responsibilities, and has underestimated its funds on hand, and declared the department's integrity" is being questioned inside and outside state government."

The Hoover panel fulfills its duty as fact finders but strays in making the recommendation that the Legislature should not assume final responsibility for selection of specific highway or transportation projects.

Its own observation that "The unusually long consensus between the executive and legislative branches of state government, the commission and CalTrans, that gave support and direction to the development of California highways for a generation after WW II no longer exists," is the key to that.

When there was total agreement on the need for highway construction there was no problem and the Legislature could delegate the detail decisions to the commission. With the expansion of the responsibilities of the department into other modes of transportation, conflicts as to the direction of programs have risen which can only be resolved by the elected representatives of the people. The Legislature can no longer afford the luxury of having someone else do their work.

The week in retrospect

Three 'Everests'

Three subjects of import to local school districts deserve further explanation.

They include the process of setting administration salaries, the search for a new Murray School District superintendent, and Public Law 94-142, equal educational opportunities for handicapped children.

As regards salaries and benefits granted administrators, supervisory and classified confidential employees, Betty Nostrand, president of the Pleasanton Joint School District Board of Trustees, points out that a news article Friday left the impression Superintendent Bruce Newlin recommends his salary increase. Mrs. Nostrand says that is in error and the figure (in this case, $37,000) is "developed by the board."

Newlin very definitely left this writer with the idea that, based upon research of what superintendents in similar districts get and what his responsibilities are, a figure was presented, offered or recommended to the board. The board then takes the data at hand, including personal knowledge of those in the private sector with equivalent responsibilities, and determines what if any increase the superintendent will receive.

But, Mrs. Nostrand says the process, or perhaps the semantics involved, are a little different. She notes that the board takes into consideration all data, including available information from the Association of California School Administrators and the California School Boards Association, and then (with full knowledge of how much they can afford to give) sets the figure.

As a result, in Newlin's case, he was advanced from $35,000 to $37,000 — which is in line with what Supt. Leo Croce in Livermore and Supt. Allan Petersdorf in San Ramon will receive.

On the matter of Murray's search for a new superintendent ...

District residents should make an effort to try and attend one or all of the "public interviews" scheduled Monday through Thursday nights at Frederiksen School in Dublin. Each of four finalists for the position of superintendent will have his/her "night". This will serve as an opportunity for residents to grill their prospective top schools man.

Names of the candidates are to be announced Monday morning.

The open meetings Monday through Thursday nights begin at 7:15 and will be chaired by members of the Local Advisory Committee.

During the past week two school boards, Pleasanton and Murray, learned "chapter and verse" of Public Law 94-142.
It is a monster!

Basically, it will insure that the handicapped youngster, be it physical or mental, will receive at least an equal opportunity to achieve success in school.

It is going to cost! Not so much in money as procedure. The requirements for checks and balances, for conferences and record-keeping and parent options (if not happy with the process) are mind-boggling!

Gloria Jones, director of pupil personnel services for the Amador and Pleasanton districts, perhaps had the best approach.

Proceed one step at a time, keeping a calm and level head and it will all work out.

Her collected and forthright approach is to be admired. Especially for one in the immediate shadow of this new Educational Everest.

Traffic signals

Editor, The Times:
In the case of young Tony Thomas — Why is it so easy for our City Council to get millions for two ugly underpasses which have created so many hazards, plus a million dollars to beautify Railroad Ave. for private owners, but So Hard to get less than $100,000 for traffic signals at Holmes and Vancouver? What kind of city officials do we have?

Copy of a Letter To Pleasanton City Council

Prompted by the recent pedestrian death of the young lad in Livermore, I bring to your attention the situation at Hopyard and Valley Trails, at the exit of the youth sports park.

Presently a uniformed officer assists pedestrians across Hopyard. Cars exitting from the Park, however, recieved no dependable assistance and this is where the problem lays. As a resident of Valley Trails, I cringe at what I see regularly happening: cars exitting in a left turn (most residents would go in this direction) are pressed by traffic in both directions and dart into the oncomimg traffic lane, then the middle no man's land, then finally, as there is opening, the southern traffic flow. This commonly occurs at the evening peak traffic time, and cannot but bring collision and bodily injury at some point.

To avoid the unpleasantness of a possible multi-car crash, I urge you to consider an immediate solution to this problem. Officer assignment of vehicle traffic control, signal light or stop sign are some considerations. Please act promptly.

The Valley Run

Editor, The Times:
The Committee for the Livermore Valley Run would like to extend their thanks to all groups and individuals that helped out with our 7th annual run on April 23rd.

Our appreciation goes to the American Red Cross Volunteers, LLRA and the LLL Fire Dept. for covering potential emergencies that thankfully didn't occur. Thnaks also to the Japanese Sister City Committee, Stocking's Bakery, and all those individuals who contributed baked goods to the awards table.

Historic Trust

Editor, The Times:
As a member of the National Trust for Historic Preservation I would like to bring attention to National Historic Preservation Week May 8-14, promoted by the National Trust for Historic Preservation.

National Historic Preservation Week stresses the importance of saving historic landmarks. Since 1933, one quarter of the more than 16,000 buildings recorded by the Historic American Buildings Survey have bepn destroyed or destructively altered. We must halt this wanton destruction.

We must recognize that part of our heritage is in the brick and mortar of past generations. We must act to preserve significant buildings associated with our history. I urge citizens of the Livermore Valley to conserve our natural resources by recycling older buildings and I commend those citizens who have already done so.

Preservation should be everyone's responsibility, the National Trust for Historic Preservation believes. It intends to emphasize that theme as the nation enters it third century.

Spring Cleanup

Editor, The Times:
Why is it that every year the City of Livermore has their free spring lawn clipping pick up, by their garbage firm, it is very well publicized, and in the papers. However in Pleasanton, no one knows that it is going to happen until it has happened. I understand that the free spring pickup day is required of the Pleasanton Garbage Service, because it is required by the City of Pleasanton. Then why is it kept a secret every year.

The garbage firm never lets the people know when the day is going to be, personally, but instead seems to think that the Pleasanton Times will do the notification for them. The Pleasanton Times does a great job, and prints one front page article headlined "Free Pleasanton Pickup" and tells the people that half the city has already supposidly had the free pickup garbage service, but for the rest of the city it gives the date, time, and what the firm will pick up. Good reporting, keep it up.

The "Pleasanton City Council," should keep this type of garbage service in mind when they contract into a monopoly and are then faced with incessant rate increase demands.

(That first notice in the Times was incorrect, and we said so in a follow-up front page item. Residents were given one week's advance notice of the Spring Cleanup through paid ads and news releases. — Editor)

Seniors housing

Editor, The Times:
Open letter to the Pleasanton Housing Authority
Board of Directors:

At the PHA meeting April 21, when several tenants brought up the subject of the unkempt grounds, i.e. weeds, bermuda grass ... The Housing Director's reply to the tenants was, in our opinion, uncalled for, quote "The weather is nice, why there are more than 60 tenants living here, it will do you good to be out in the sun for an hour or two keeping up the grounds. Why, I wish I could get out and do it." unquote. Shame on you, Mr. Housing Director, might we point it out to you ...this is a housing project for the elderly? Some of us are not in the best of health ... We only wish that we were able, however we are not.

Kottinger Place is four years old and already showing outside signs of wear due to the weather. Why does not the Housing Authority maintain both the inside andd outside of the buildings? The buildings are in need of paint, the roof gutters need cleaning out, the weeds need weeding, the grounds need to be replanted in places. Yes, we agree with you that it is too much work for one man to keep up, so why isn't additional help being sought through Federal Work programs, at no expense to the Housing Authority? ... Could not the Housing Authority Authority and the City of Pleasanton work together to solve this problem? We hope that we are helped in these matters.

Varsity coach

Copy of a letter to —
Ralph Laird, Principal
Amador Valley High School

As co-captains of the 1976 Frosh Football team we would like to inform you of our feelings about the decisions you will soon be making regarding the varsity Football coaches.

Our experiences working with coach Canfield were very fulfilling. We learned the skills of the game along with the dedication and sportsmanship of being a winning team. Mr. Canfiled took a group of green inexperienced freshman coming from different schools and had us working together as a team. Inspite of his physical problems he always put his utmost effort into teaching us. We feel that coach Canfield has all the requirements needed to be an effective component of the varsity staff.

round the town

The United States Bureau of the Census has determined we are getting older. There is absolutely no evidence that we are also growing smarter.

The Census Bureau spends a few million of our bucks every year coming up with this startling information. Send 'em 25 cents and they'll send you back detailed evidence on the number of Americans who take baths, as opposed to those who shower. There is strong evidence some among us use neither.

It may surprise you that a great big bureau of our government is needed just to determine we are indeed growing oider. (In our house, that declaration is made almost every morning ... by a female voice which announces thus from the far side of the bed: "It seems to take you a little longer to get out of bed and get yourself into gear these days." Her incisive comment ages me that much more, and so the days go by.)

In truth, Median American is a youthful 29 years of age. That means there are exactly 108 million Americans OVER that age and 108 million Americans UNDER that median. Nobody anywhere is exactly 29 years of age ... we're all over or under.

Seems like just a few years ago when we Median Americans were all a mere 27.9 years. 1970 in fact. Medians have put on one - year - plus in the last seven. By 2036 there will be as many of us over 40 as there are under 40! For every American gainfully employed, another will be on Social Security!!

The times are out of joint. Shakespeare figured that out even before they had digital watches.

I bought one that spits out the time, second count and date, all at the press of a button. "The very latest thing in digital watches!" the man assured me. But that was before "Time Computers!" Time computers?? Yes, and furthermore this little wrist model "adds, subtracts, divides, figures percentages ..." It even tells the time, provided you activate the right "memory cell", or whatever.

Tomorrow, and tomorrow, and tomorrow,
Creeps in this petty pace from day to day,
To the last syllable of recorded time.

Macbeth had all kinds of trouble with time. It was ever marching forward when he was going backward; or vice versa. But that was before the Incomparable Pulsar Time Computer. Alas, like Macbeth, I am stuck with the old model.

"Most people are dissatisfied with their present jobs ... give them a windfall of cash and they'd quit working right now."

A prominent sociologist in Claremont figured that out. He interviewed 34 winners of the New Jersey million - dollar lottery to draw his conclusions.

Every blessed winner who came into quick wealth also came into immediate retirement. This proves something sociologically important to Dr. Kaplan. Personally, I could have come to that same conclusion without months of research. Try interviewing young people for a job opening.

"What's your vacation schedule?" the young cherub asks, first crack out of the box. "Is there a company - paid hospital plan? What about retirement benefits ... the last four newspapers I worked for didn't offer much on that score."

We begin to die the moment we are born, some sad sack wrote. Probably a sociologist. Or maybe a communist. Born losers all.

Even while we live, it's not easy. To comprehend. To keep up. To change. Always change.

"Twice as many unmarried couples were living together in 1976 as were in 1970." That too from your friendly Bureau of the Census. It is the time for "getting to know you" which the young new generation preaches; their answer to our tiresome divorce rules. But it hasn't worked.

"The divorce rate has doubled since 1960," Census says. One of every three holy wedlocks are due for the splits, we are advised. The chances for survival are somewhat better if you wait until after 35 before you tie the knot.

"What's Middle Age?" Bunch of scientists asked themselves that question. Came up with a confusion of answers. "Unable to find a single disease entity or mental condition that is necessarily related to the passage of time," they concluded. In other words, they don't know why we get older. Mostly mental, some suspect. "As old as you feel" kind of nonsense.

Some days you get to feeling very old indeed. Census Bureau facts and busy - body sociologists don't help any. Neither do computerized time pieces that can multiply our days at the press of a memory button.

. Banish them all, I say. Live for today. Tomorrow you could be 40.

"This has been a particularly rough day! I just heard Bert Lance is discouraging government agencies from using consultants!"

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: Should we, a family of five, need five TV sets to accommodate everyone's preference? Why can't we ever agree on programs? My wife causes the greatest problem. She's crazy about quiz shows and personality-studded programs. I can't stand them. I like good detective shows and my kids are bored with these unless they're gory. I wish my wife and kids could put on their own shows in other rooms while I relax quietly with TV after a hard day's work. Is there any solution other than buying more sets or banning TV altogether? — C.G.

DEAR C.G.: You and your wife should get first choice and then try letting the kids sign up in advance for what they want to watch. Make it a game.

Parents should monitor what programs their children watch, and regardless of what they're viewing, two hours a night is usually enough. I feel that there should be a definite limit to viewing violence and aggression.

I believe unless a parent or other responsible adult is present, certain shows should be forbidden. Most studies indicate that violent shows are far less damaging to youngsters if an adult is present while they're being viewed. The adult serves to reassure the children that what they're seeing isn't really happening and his comments can also guide the child and let him know that certain behavior is crude, vicious and definitely not acceptable.

Often, the quiz - show or personality - show addict is a lonely person. You might be able to wean your wife away from these and over to your side of the viewing room, if you encouraged her to get out during the day and to participate in some stimulating hobbies.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: For some reason my 10 - year-old son has always had a rough time at school. He's insecure even though he has an unusually high IQ. Each semester, it's an agony for him to go to class. He's never really enjoyed it. His father loved school and can't understand why our son doesn't already know exactly what he wants to do when he enters college. My husband has two sons by his earlier marriage; one is a lawyer, the other a doctor and they too have difficulty understanding my boy. Is there anything I can do? — P.T.

DEAR P.T.: Yes. Try to get your husband and his older sons to stop the pressure and to see this child as an individual. It sounds to me as if the boy feels smothered by them. He's still trying to find his own identity and all three males are making this very difficult for him.

He needs a great deal of encouragement and reassurance that he has the freedom to be separate, to make his own decisions about what to do with his life when the time comes. Right now, he should be living a day at a time with no thought as to what his profession will be when he's 20 or 30.

He needs to know that he'll succeed at whatever he'll do. After all, he may decide to be an artist, rather than a doctor or lawyer and he should realize that this is up to him. Avoid any comparisons between him and his older brothers or his father. This will help him to avoid trying to compete in any way.

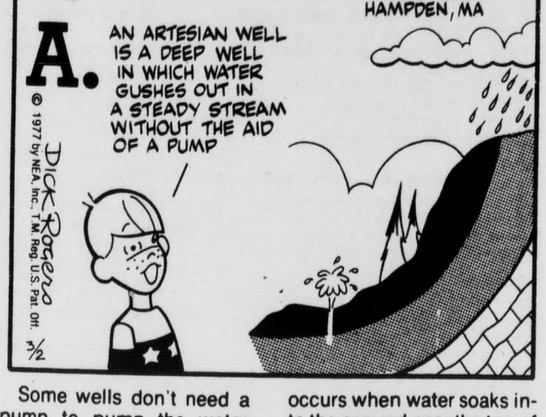

The key to success is expecting to succeed. Researchers have shown that the important effect of success on behavior is not the experience itself, but the expectation of more success. Those who glow with security are able to forget their liabilities. Remove the pressure and encourage your son to relax and enjoy.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "WHAT IS AN ARTESIAN WELL?"

A. AN ARTESIAN WELL IS A DEEP WELL IN WHICH WATER GUSHES OUT IN A STEADY STREAM WITHOUT THE AID OF A PUMP

LAURA ABAR
HAMPDEN, MA

Some wells don't need a pump to pump the water out. When the well is drilled, the water gushes out like a fountain. We call this kind of well an artesian well.

The water that flows from a well comes from rainwater or melted snow that has soaked deep into the earth. When an ordinary water well is drilled, the ground water fills the bottom of the well. It must be pumped out.

An artesian well is quite different. An artesian well occurs when water soaks into the ground near the top of a high hill. The ground water seeps downhill from the pull of gravity and becomes trapped between layers of hard rock or watertight earth in the valley below.

When a well is dug there, or if it finds a natural opening, the water gushes out without the aid of a pump. The accumulated weight of the imprisoned water produces the pressure to make the water shoot out.

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 28 years old and I have had ulcerative colitis for four years. Even though I have the disease under control with cortisone and antibiotics I still experience almost constant heartburn. My doctor tells me to take antacids, but they offer very little relief.

Recently I read a book by a nutritionist. She claims that too little hydrochloric acid causes the same symptoms as too much; bloating, gas, heartburn. She says that taking hydrochloric acid tablets will eliminate these problems, and that antacids are the "worst" and people have been brainwashed into popping antacids.

Have you any comment on the use of hydrochloric acid in place of antacids?

DEAR READER — Yes, I do. An important principle in medicine if you want to help a patient is to treat the right thing. A leg splint won't do much for a broken arm.

If a person really had absence of hydrochloric acid in the stomach it might be important. It is usually a result of another disease problem such as pernicious anemia or cancer of the stomach. Absence of hydrochloric acid as the basic cause of illness is rare if it occurs at all. This was once a popular diagnosis and people did take hydrochloric acid but it is now considered a rare problem and treatment with hydrochloric acid is seldom indicated.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) The quirks of an old friend may surface today, but you should take his conduct with a grain of salt. It's only a temporary condition.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) One you're fond of may do something that you think is a little flakey today. Weigh her past performance. Forgive it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Matters that are serious to you today may not have the same gravity to others. Bear this in mind if you want to keep relationships harmonious.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If there's something that you feel should be done today, don't let anything deter you. Heeding the siren call of pleasure could dash your hopes.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be aware of the interests of your companions today. If they don't want to talk business, you'll draw their negative reaction.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You may have an opportunity today to do a favor. You'll do it reluctantly because you know there's nothing in it for you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't behave in a knavish manner if you're with important people today. It's imperative to impress them as a staunch, dependable person.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you want your family to hew the line on the budget, they shouldn't be expected to scrimp while you squander.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) When discussing serious matters today, say no more than is necessary. You'll only defeat your purpose.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Even though you can capably manage your resources today, you're too sympathetic. Others could talk you out of what you know is right.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll be willing to help your pals today, but somehow you'll make them feel obligated by letting them know you had to make certain small sacrifices.

South played dummy's four of diamonds at trick one. East played the eight to force South's ace. The defenders never got a diamond trick, but they did manage to collect two hearts and two clubs which was all they needed.

If East had risen with the jack of diamonds, South would have been able to finesse against West's queen, discard a club or heart on the ace and make his contract.

No one paid much attention to East's play. East knew he had played the right card, but North and South were so busy arguing about their bidding that no one stopped to compliment East.

There was really no cause to argue. North had a tough choice at his second bid. Three spades and even four spades were possible choices, but North had elected to bid two notrump. This left South with a choice between a pass and a raise to three notrump. South didn't have a singleton anywhere in his hand. He only had 12 high card points, but his hand was going to take six or seven tricks at either spades or notrump.

We would have bid three notrump because we are optimists and three notrump reels right in.

Ask the Jacobys

A Kentucky reader wants to know if it is ever proper to raise your partner when void of his suit.

The answer is "Yes" but the chance does not come up very often. Here is one time: Your partner bids six of a suit and you have the other three aces. You can surely raise him to seven.

Ratings Rise For Baseball

The numbers are up for Monday Night Baseball on ABC. The network has had two shows, with the Dodgers-Reds and Yankees-Royals the primary games, and they have been the third and fourth highest rated telecasts since baseball began on Monday nights.

The two games averaged a 14.7 rating—meaning 14.7 per cent of TV sets in the U.S. were tuned to ABC—and a 26 share—meaning 26 per cent of sets in use at the time were tuned to the ballgame.

That compares with a 13.0 rating and 22 share for the first two games last season and a 12.2 rating and 20 share in 1975, the last year NBC had the Monday night games.

EBMUD finds new source for dry season water need

OAKLAND — If all goes well, by September of this year a Super Pump will start propelling 70 million gallons of water a day from Middle River into one of East Bay Municipal Utility District's (EBMUD) three Mokelumne Aqueducts which pass through the Delta.

The object of the emergency project is to pump and purify Delta water to augment EBMUD's water supply during the drought, according to EBMUD Chief Engineer Don Larkin.

The additional water is for EBMUD's 1.1 million customers. A contract between EBMUD and the United States Bureau of Reclamation for water from the Auburn - Folsom South unit of the Central Valley Project makes the extra supply possible.

The state is building a second pumping station at the same Delta location. A second EBMUD aqueduct will be used to transfer this water from Middle River to Indian Slough. The object of this second station is to improve watersupply quality in Contra Costa County's Water District.

The EBMUD pumping plant project cost estimate is $2.1 million. That amount pays for construction and operation until the drought ends.

Additional purification facilities needed for EBMUD filter plants will add another $2.5 for construction and operation.

Costs of the project related to a Marin County project will be shared by Contra Costa County Water District.

Delta water supply quality will be significantly different from EBMUD's Mokelumne River source, according Larkin.

"Our customers will probably be able to notice the difference once the Middle River plant is in operation this fall," Larkin explained. "We are going to blend Delta water with our Mokelumne water to achieve a good overall water quality level. In a year like this we have to be thankful we have Delta water available for East Bay to use."

Additional water purification systems, using "carbon - feed" equipment, will be built at EBMUD filter plants this summer. This will assure East Bay residents of having safe, pure water.

Larkin said without the pumps EBMUD would have had difficulty getting supplemental water this year for East Bay.

The Middle River pumping plant project is complicated by a tight construction schedule and a difficult work location, according to Larkin.

He said Mokelumne Aqueducts run through the Delta over unstable peatlands.

"Consequently, the pumping plant structures must be built on steel piles," he explained. "The ground is like a pincushion up there now. We have to drive more than 90 piles into the peat before we can even build the concrete pad for our pumps."

More piles must be driven to support a power substation plus pipes which will draw water out of Middle River into the aqueducts, Larkin reported.

"It's not an easy place to work," Larkin said. "The construction area is accessible only by ferry and there is very little room to maneuver cranes, pile drivers and equipment.

Anti-cancer crusaders

Emily Dizani describes her journey to a happy, healthy life following a mastectomy at the American Cancer Society's Crusade kick-off luncheon at Shannon Park Community Center in Dublin. Ms. Dizani addressed several hundred valley volunteers who were staging a door - to - door campaign seeking donations through Saturday, May 7 and urged them to tell every women they meet about the ACS Reach to Recovery program, a free service staffed by trained volunteers for women who have undergone breast surgery. On Ms. Dizani's right is the ACS Area Coordinator Karren Pentony, and to her left is Addie Crabtree, an ACS service representative for Alameda County. Mori offers camping data in Pleasanton

Many campgrounds have been affected by the drought, so families planning their camping vacations this summer should first check conditions, Assemblyman Floyd Mori cautioned last week.

"The drought has played havoc with many parks in California," Mori said. "Some lakes and streams will be dry, preventing fishing and boating, and some campgrounds will be closed altogether because of extreme fire danger.

"The Drought Information Center in Sacramento has published an up-to-date recreation report on most state and national campgrounds showing the conditions at the sites," Mori said. "It will be updated frequently throughout the long, dry summer.

"The report is available in my district offices at 22300 Foothill Blvd., Suite 228, in Pleasanton. I invite local residents to come in and pick up a copy or request a copy by calling 538-5533 in Hayward or 462-1822 in Pleasanton. It just might make the difference between a memorable vacation and a disappointing holiday," Mori said.

CB'ers help drive

When area chairperson for the American Cancer Society's publin crusade couldn't get adult volunteers, Betty Ogle turned to the Tri-Valley Youth, a Dublin club made up of 100 youngsters who own CB radios. Siblings Matt and Jill Freitas demonstrate the art of getting on the air to Betty, and planned to pound the pavement yesterday for the 1977 Cancer Crusade. The Crusade, which began April 27, is asking for donations to help fund everything from research to service programs. For more information call Betty at 829-3272.

gesture as they sipped their drinks but were too inhibited to play — this time.

Players paid $10 to enter and got $1 back for each marble they knocked out of the ring. Plates of teriyaki chicken and rye bread were their reward when the matches were over.

Their permanent rewards will be first, second and third - place plaques or trophies — Yamamoto hasn't decided which — plus, in keeping with the whimsical spirit, a "boulder" marble glued to a trophy pedestal which will be used as a perpetual trophy.

"I don't know whether anyone will make that up for me," he wondered Friday.

Saloon patrons are reportedly begging for a rematch next month but Yamamoto hasn't decided whether to stage one that soon. He's planning to have a custom - made marbles table set up in the cheerful bar along with the pool table and card tables he has now. Pinball may become the focus of a second "tournament."

He wants to change the image of the former 1079 Club in which the Saloon, complete with hand - painted front window and custom - made Tiffany lamps, is now located.

"I'm trying to keep a positive atmosphere," he says.

And, in a modest pun: "I want to keep the ball rolling."

Why Orr walked away

utilities, salaries, field trips and supplies to educate the district's 600 children of Native American heritage.

Ironically, Bardellini has said he will try to get the coordinator's position upgraded in salary now. The job had been fixed at the level of a secretarial position in classification and pay although there are many administrative responsibilities.

A second disagreement revolves around a verbal agreement Orr says he received to be given compensatory time off when he attends evening meetings, Saturday classes, holiday field trips and other after - hours activities required by his job description.

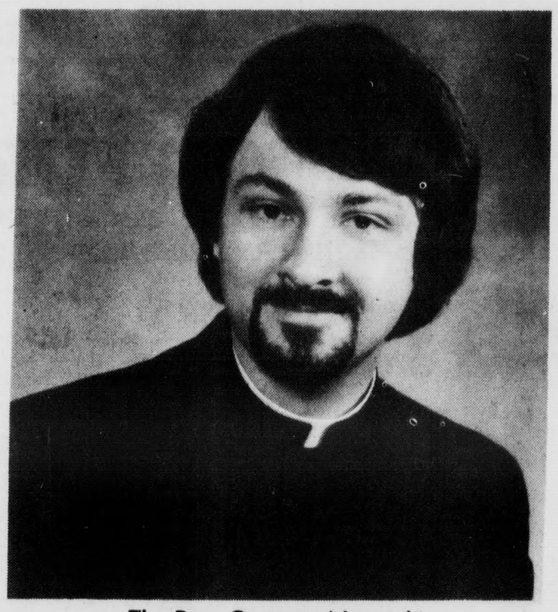

He's investigating the possibility of taking the Livermore Unified School District to court over the pay issues.

While coordinating Antioch's $104,000 - a - year Native American program last year, Orr was paid $12,000. However, he says he didn't quit because he couldn't live on his $700 - a - month salary but because he felt "cheated and deceived" when next year's raise didn't come through. He also outlined other differences he had over aides' pay, job responsibilities and by - laws.

Since leaving the center, Orr has worked at home renovation projects and is currently looking for a full - time job. "I could get a job at another center tomorrow," he says, "if I had a credential.

"But I've been running Indian programs for the past 13 years and I don't see what I'd learn by going to college another year to get the credential. I don't see where it would help the kids, and that's the point, isn't it?"

The Rev. Gregory Nowacki

Rev. Greg Nowacki ordained priest

PLEASANTON — The Rev. Gregory Nowacki, S.D.S., will be ordained priest May 7 at St. Pius X Prep School, Galt, California. He will celebrate his First Mass at noon on May 8 at St. Augustine's Catholic Church in Pleasanton, where he has served as deacon and where he will continue to minister as associate pastor after ordination.

The ordination culminates fifteen years of preparation for the ministry of service as priest. Originally Father Greg studied for the Diocese of Gary, Indiana, attending the Salvatorian Novitiate, Colfax, Iowa. His studies took him to Mount St. Paul College and Dominican College in Wisconsin, where he was granted his B.A. degree in history, philosophy, and languages. He also pursued undergraduate and graduate studies in languages and history at Georgetown University, the University of Wisconsin, and Monterey Institute of Foreign Studies. Putting his background and talents to use, he then taught comparative religion and philosophy, nonwestern history, and Russian language and literature for three years at John F. Kennedy Prep School in Wisconsin.

He achieved teacher certification in yogic studies at the Sivananda Ashram in Val Morin, Quebec, Canada and has taught programs in yoga.

In 1973, he returned to pursue graduate studies in theology at the Washington, D.C. Theological Coalition and the Graduate Theological Union in Berkeley, where he received an M.A. in Systematic Theology in 1976. He finishes a Masters of Divinity degree this spring at Berkeley's Franciscan School of Theology. He also interned as chaplain at University of California - San Francisco Medical Center and as deacon this past year at St. Augustine's Church in Pleasanton.

Commenting on his ordination, Father Greg said: "The many varied experiences of the past fifteen years have prepared me to respond to the Lord's call to serve His people as priest and brother, as proclaimer of the Gospel, as teacher and foot - washer, as comforter and leader in worship, as servant with my whole self and life. I feel humbled, happy, anxious, and excited as ordination approaches and I continue my path of service to others and God as a priest."

CC pet squabbles stir many residential rows

DANVILLE — Contra Costa County citizens are squawking more and more about animal control problems, according to that county's fifth district supervisor, Eric Hasseltine.

He mentioned this fact during a liaison meeting Thursday morning at the Danville Hotel Restaurant and Saloon.

"More items and concerns come up about this problem than I believed existed," Hasseltine said.

"Complaints pour in from people about their neighbors pets. Then the person being complained about calls in and complains about the person who called in to report in the first place."

He said most of the complaints were about the number or kind of animals owned by neighbors.

"One gentleman who owns goats called in to say he didn't think he should be limited to the same number of goats as his neighbor who owns horses. Goats are nicer and smaller than horses the man contended," Hasseltine said.

He said there's a battle about to begin between neighbors and a man who has a pet jaguar caged in his back yard.

"I used to chuckle at liaison meetings when Supervisor Linscheid mentioned animal control problems," Hasseltine said. "I don't chuckle anymore now that I'm in his seat. The complications are incredible."

During the Thursday session, Hasseltine mentioned a police cadet program was being proposed to help with parking enforcement. The Contra Costa County Sheriff's Department was making the proposal.

"The idea is to free regular police from this duty so they can devote their time to more important matters," Hasseltine reported.

He said the Sheriff's department was understaffed and could use the added help.

Some progress predicted on arms limiting talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Harold Brown said Friday there is a "pretty good chance" of a modest U.S. Soviet agreement on strategic nuclear arms limitation by October, but that the probability of a far - reaching pact by then is not high.

Brown gave his assessment of the SALT prospects at a news conference in which he said "we should not feel called upon" to offer a new proposal each time the Russians balk at an American package.

The defense secretary, a negotiator in the past, indicated that it might be possible to win Soviet agreement by October on some formula based on the tentative understanding reached by former President Gerald R. Ford and Soviet leader Leonid I. Breznhev at Vladivostok in 1974.

The Vladivostok agreement limits total numbers of strategic missiles and bombers to 2,400 on each side, including 1,320 armed with multiple independently targeted warheads — MIRV's.

The Russians have rejected the Carter administration's first proposal for a comprehensive agreement, which would reduce the number of nuclear weapons on each side for the first time and strictly limit the biggest missiles.

Brown indicated that the United States will bring to the renewed talks on May 18 that same comprehensive proposal the Russians rejected.

The 1972 SALT agreement is due to expire in October, and Brown said that, if necessary, it could be extended by explicit or tacit agreement if a new SALT pact had not been completed by that time.

Four-Day Week

About 10,000 companies with a million employes are currently on a four-day work week, The Conference Board reports. Most of the companies retain the 40-hour work week, however, by establishing a 10-hour work day. The goal: To create more flexible hours for workers. Many firms using flex-time systems have found that a majority of their workers like the change.

BU throttles 'Vegas, 5-1

LAS VEGAS — Ballistic United's Under-12 soccer team overcame a 1-0 Las Vegas lead in the first six minutes, scoring four second half goals to defeat the Blazers, 5-1, in first round action of the United States Youth Soccer Association's Western Regionals here Friday.

Scott Mandle scored what proved to be the winning goal early in the second half, heading in a goal at the four-minute mark after a shot by Mike Deleray hit the crossbar to make it 2-1. Earlier in the first half, the locals erased a 1-0 Blazer lead off a goal by Deleray with an assist to Doug Croteau.

Mel Grisel and Mark Andrews combined to produce Ballistic's third goal with 15 minutes gone to make it 3-1. Shortly thereafter, Karl Kesterke slapped home a goal after a pileup in front of the net and San Moore completed the scoring on a booming 20-yard shot moments before the end.

Chris Pearson and Lennie McMillan solidified an unyielding defense for the winners, while goalie Andy Eelsing played an outstanding game.

Smith paces Compton's to 12-8 victory

Galen Smith came on ir relief and got the win while Landon Woelh and Tom Marino played good defense behind him as Compton's Orioles shaded the Val Vista Center Yankees, 12-8, in recent Pleasanton American senior baseball.

Josh Shinnick plated three runs with a trio of singles for the O's, while Arnie Ford and Roger Rawson each had a pair of hits and one rbi.

Mike Campbell's three hits for the Yankees included a homer and were good for two rbi.

In the majors, Chris Damoulos got the Bread Box Angels off to a good start with three no-hit innings and the result was an 11-4 shearing of the Pleasanton Valley Barber Shop Tigers.

Dan Maslana tripled, singled and drove in two runs for the winners while Todd Graham knocked in a pair with two singles and Damoulos got two hits and an rbi. Brian Maready singled to plate another run.

For the losers, whose Mike Schnorr also hurled three frames of no-no ball, John Schwartzman singled.

In AAAA play, Devin Merrill and winning pitcher Tony Luppino each had two hits and Sean Gaddis doubled as Frank's Exxon Tigers slowed down the Copy Quick Angels, 9-6.

Todd Gould tripled for the losers.

In AAA play, the U. S. Datacorp Angels deprogrammed the Harris Realty Tigers, 24-5, as Chip Kouns drove in four runs with a trio of hits, Eric Slabaugh had four hits and an rbi and Ken Becker doubled in a run.

Daryl Sequeria and Kent Wilkes both played well on defense.

Jeff Ruckteschler drove in three runs while Chris Booth was the winning pitcher and got three hits as the Pleasanton Shell Service Yankees cancelled the AA Indians reservation, 9-5.

Mike Weber doubled twice and John Gamblin had a pair of singles.

In A ball, Clint Humphrey doubled and tripled to drive in three runs, Scott Warnke tripled to knock in two and Jim Strommer doubled to chase a pair as the Sultan's Carpet Tigers worked their magic on the Dupree's Furniture Angels, 8-2.

David Wojak tripled twice while Steve Moore and Greg Could each doubled for the losers.

Luck ran out on the Harris Realty Shamrocks as they fell to the Kaiser Blue Jeans, 17-12, thanks to fine hitting by Kristy Northam and Cythia Clune of the BJ's.

Maureen Bastek was the winning pitcher and Jamay Gotelli was outstanding at shortstop for the Jeans. Alicia Booth singled and hit a two-run double for the losers, while Michelli Farrant also had a Shamrock hit.

Wet end to EBAL swim meet

Boxing has the clang of the bell, basketball the air horn and soccer the referee's shrill whistle, but the end of a swimming meet is seldom announced aurally.

Yet, such was the case at the East Bay Athletic League's annual North Coast Section qualifying meet, alias The Assualt on the Record Book, yesterday at the San Ramon Olympic Pool adjacent to California High School.

After 18 of the 22 events had been swum, and 12 records broken, a magnificently ominous clap of thunder boomed through the rain that had begun splattering the deck a half hour before. Fearing the potential dangers of an electrical storm on a pool full of teenagers, league coaches decided to call it quits and award the last four events on the basis of morning time trials or seeded times.

It was too late to save the record book , though. That quickly outdated publication had been fried about as effectively as any lightning bolt could have hoped.

Davitt Cunningham, who watched one of his old frosh-soph 'B' marks fall to Amador Valley's Dan Knauer, more than made up for the small loss with a pair of mark mashing efforts in the varsity division.

In the first individual final of the afternoon, Knauer had nipped Cunningham's 'B' 200 yard freestyle record by sixth-tenths of a second, clocking a 1:50.8.

So Cunningham leaped into the water and took any frustration he might have felt out on Chris Hoenig's one year old varsity standard of 1:47.9, finishing the four-lapper in 1:46.4.

Later in the day, Cunningham obliterated the existing 100 yard backstroke mark while his predecessor tried fruitlessly to defend the record in a nearby lane. Cunningham broke the record of 57.5 by 2.7 seconds , while Livermore's Paul Lohmann, who set the mark last year, came in at 56.3.

Lohmann, too, made up for one loss with a new record. He zipped to a 2:01.1 in the 200 yard individual medley to smash the oldest record on the EBAL books. Jeff Lanini of Amador had held the record, 2:04.5, for ten years.

Steve Ruffner of Granada had been seeded with the same time, but fell off to a 2:04.2 in the finals. Ruffner, seeded into the finals of the 100 yard breast stroke — which never came off as denied a chance at that record, but Karl Lohmann of the Cowboys equalled the record with a 1:03.1 timing.

California's Mike Murphy bettered the second-oldest mark still standing in the 100 yard freestyle. Livermore's Paul Nolan had turned in a 49.9 in 969. Murphy paddled to a 49.7 in the finals after a 49.3 in trials.

In 'B' action, Knauer also broke the 500 free record with a 5:01.3, while team mate Ed Carter broke a pair of marks. He whizzed to a 58.3 in a heat of the 100 IM trials and tied with Doug Williamson for a clocking of 25.5 in the 50 fly. Bill Mac Donald tied the 50 free record at 24.0 while San Ramon team mate Timm Torchiana clocked a record 51.7 in the 100 free.

North Coast Section swim representatives met last night to determine the final field for the Section meet to be contested at Ohlone College.

The annual Mendy awards

On Sports

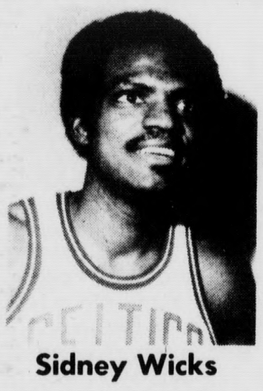

Good morning.

Welcome to the American Academy of Basketball Snorts and Sarcasm's annual awards breakfast, where today a galaxy of the sport's stars will gather to present and receive the prestigious "Mendy" awards, emblematic of unique contribution to the game during the 1976-77 season.

And now without further ado, let's go to a former winner of the Sho' Nuff My Man Jitter-Jive award, Sonny Hill, our emcee, who'll take us the rest of the way ...

Hey, right own, thankee much, Brent, I'm just hopins we can all shoot two and be down on the corner singin' inyoface when we all done here. Now, quicker than a Doctor dunk shot, let's be operatin' on the awards...

The Here I Sit All Broken Hearted, Came to Play, But Only Started Award goes to Gus Williams of the Golden State Warriors. Gus makes 175 grand per, drives a Jaguar and may or may not be, as Bill King put it, a total disaster.

Sidney Wicks

But it is true that Gus looks first at the minutes played column of the stat sheet after each game. If Williams says he got 30, it probably means he lasted almost three periods before fouling out.

Yes, Sonny, and speaking of Bill King, I think it's a perfect time to announce the There's No Bones in Ice Cream Logic Award.

No sweat, Big B, no sweat, we gonna give that one to Glenn Dickey, the acerbic columnist for the San Francisco Chronicle for blaming King, the Voice of the Warriors, for ruining the club's season.

Seems he criticized Smith and Williams on the air, thus causing all the sportswriters, who revere King, to denegrate Smith in their stories, ruining Phil's confidence, causing a breakdown in the back court and ultimately forcing the Warriors to lose to Los Angeles in the Western Conference semis.

Well, Sonny, you certainly can see Glenn's point. But I'm worried that thus chastised, Bill will stop criticizing the team, thereby leaving problems unrevealed and causing another bad year for Golden State.

Like I say Brent, no BIG deal atall. We'll just give the award to Glenn again next time.

Now, let's finally give Bill his award, though he'll have to share it with the Lakers' Chick Hearn. What an honor for these two to share the Try to See It My Way award.

nd they do dee-serve it Brent, my man. Seems Bill calls the Forum "this dreadful arena" while Chick gushes that "she's beautiful when she's full." Question is, full a' what?

How 'bout the old Twice on the Pipes award, Sonny.

Got it cov-erred. We'll just drop that on the Forum organist with a little duh-duh-duh-da-da-duh-duh-duh. Dude sounds like he's sandblastin' a Philly subway tunnel.

Indeed, and let's go to the City of Brotherly Love for the Who Gives a Flying Philly at a Rolling Doughnut Award. That goes to the proud folks at People Mag...er, excuse me, the Associated Press, for their brilliant mid-season dispatch which quoted no less an authority than Turquoise "Mrs. J" Erving on the 76ers internal problems .

Hey, baby, don't be knockin' the Turk. But as long as we've got to talk dissension, let's give out that Reggie Harding Memorial One Bad Apple Award to Marvin "Worse News" Barnes of the Detroit Pistons.

Cat conked a college team mate with a tire iron, lessened Spirits in St. Louis and soon as he shows up in Detroit on his way to Rhode Island State Pen, Kevin Porter tries to strangle Herbie Brown.

And, Sonny, we just can't forget the effect those embattled Pistons had on fans in Oakland, Ca. this season. How 'bout the One, Two , Three Strikes, You're Fanned award to Warrior season-ticket holder Dennis Ackerman for his rabbit punch of Detroit's M.L. "Michael" Carr.

Well, again, Brenty M, let us not be so hasty in riling those Coliseum folk. We got to give the old Laurel of the Unknown Heckler Award to the dude who watched Barnes sneakin' up on a Warrior and yelled, "Look out, he's got a knife."

But, 'nuff about the Warriors, they're dead for the year so why don't ya tell the folks 'bout the He Who Laughs First Laughs Worst Award.

Right you are, Sonny. And, of course there can be no other choice for this one than Sidney Wicks of the Boston Celtics. Chuckling all the way, he left the Portland Trail Blazers, a team that had never made the play-offs, weasled his way out of New Orleans and caught on with the World Champion Boston Celtics.

The rest is history. Although Sid the Kid did appear on a recent Sports Illustrated cover, the Celts have been dumped out of the play-offs and the Trail Blazers, perhaps, rank as favorites to capture the vacant throne.

Our final award, Sonny, has been voted on by a panel of 200 million fans across the country, who were allowed to name and award the evening's final prize.

Right own, Brent. Like, let's have the envelope please. Well, the people have spo-ken. They're callin' it the Completely Blatant Subservience to Technological Vehicles or CBS-TV award and they're givin' it to the en-tire En Bee Aye.

Yes, Sonny and we'd go to Commissioner O'Brien for his comments, but there's time-out in the banquet hall...and by Alka Seltzer, plop-plop, fizz-fizz....

Bill MacDonald of San Ramon clears the blocks, eventually winding up with an EBAL frosh - soph record - tying mark of 24.0 in the 50 free.

Granada netters cinch title tie

All four Granada singles players took two - set victories to lead the Matadors to a title-cinching 4-3 win over San Ramon Friday in East Bay Athletic League tennis play in Livermore.

It was a near - perfect repeat of the previous meeting between the two premier teams in the league, as the Mats had earlier dropped all three doubles matches while winning the singles division.

With two matches remaining, the Mtas are 11-1 and lead runner up San Ramon by a full two games. Barring a major shakeup, the Mats should coast to the outright title.

Dana Sorem had the toughest time of the four Mat winners but came away with a 6-3, 7-5 win over the Wolves' Kelly McDonald. Sylvia Knell topped Jenniffer Powell at number two singles, 6-2, 6-1, while Mary DeVaney ripped Liz Ross (6-3, 6-1) and Linda Dean toppled Roblee Zuckerman (6-2, 6-4) to complete the Granada sweep.

Michelle Borges and Janet Thomas put up the strongest fight in the doubles for the Mats, losing to SR's team of Wendy Merrick and Lisa Sundquist, 2-6, 6-3, 6-0.

In other clashes Friday, Monte Vista kept its record alive with a 6-1 thrashing of Livermore in a match that saw the 'Pokes' only win come from premiere singles player Lori Larson. She grinded out a 7-5, 6-4 win over Alice Settle, while all other Cowgirls were defeated in their matches.

Amador Valley also lost the first singles match, but found plenty of help elsewhere in rolling to a 6-1 win over Foothill.

Kathy Carey presented the Falcons with a win in the first singles match, taking a 6-1, 6-2, decision over Debbie Drummond. However, Amador roared back with wins from Karen Duffy, Carolyn Hill, Cathy Camozzi and the doubles teams of Denice Crall and Lisa Estrada, Mindy Gottesman nd Shelly Butera, and Renee Yandell and Mary Hansen to post the easy victory.

In the day's final match, Dublin held a 3-1 lead over California before a peculiar rainstorm, one that touched only the northern part of the Valley, washed out the remainder of the matches.

Gangnuss fifth at West Coast

FRESNO — Chuck Gangnuss of Dublin High placed fifth in the 120 yard high hurdle finals at the West Coast Relays Friday, the only place points by a valley prep.

Gangnuss won his heat in 14.8 and ran 14.69 for fifth in the final. Andre Phillips of Silver Creek won in 14.3.

The Gaels' 440 yard relay team placed fifth in their heat 43.6. Edison of Fresno had the fastest clocking with a 42.2.

Hiram Johnson High School of Sacramento won the high school division, Pasadena Junior College took the JC won division, and Long Beachin the college division of the two day meet that ended last night in cold, blustery weather.

UCLA freshman Greg Foster edged a diving Dedy Cooper in the 100 meter high hurdles, clocking 13.54, best electronic time in the world this year.

Dan Ripley upset Olympian Earl Bell in the pole vault with a clearance Clancy Edwards, who led USC to a convinvcing dual-meet victory over UCLA last week, won the open 100-meter in 10.38.

Other open-class winners included Stanford's James Lofton in the long jump, 25'6½"; Al Feurbach in the shot put at 67'0-½"; John Powell in the discus at 201'9", and the California two-mile relay team in 7:30.4.

Chabot was far back in the junior college division scoring, though Hal McRae won the triple jump with a 50-8¾ leap.

Los Medanos' sensational freshman, Derald Harris, won the JC 100 meters in 10.3 and was timed in 20 seconds flat for his leg in the 800 - meter relay .

Foreman says he's through

HOUSTON — Former world heavyweight boxing champion George Foreman said Saturday he is retiring from the ring because of his religious beliefs and his love for his mother.

"Because of my religious beliefs, I believe it wrong to hit and beat up on another person even if it is a sport," Foreman told radio station KTOC.

Foreman said "it all started in Houston as a street fighter and that's where it's going to end."

"I've been lucky in the past not to have killed anyone in the ring and I thank God that I never hurt anyone seriously while I was boxing," he said.

Foreman said he had not decided what he would do in the future except that he would be engaged in religious activities.

"My mother never really wanted me to fight," said Foreman, who was born in Marshall, Tex., where he now makes his home, but was raised in Houston.

"She was always worried and nervous when I was in the ring, about my losing or getting hurt," he said. "And thanks to God, she will not have to worry about it any more because I'm not fighting any more."

Foreman, 28 won 46 bouts and suffered two losses — to Muhammad Ali and Jimmy Young in his last fight this year.

Foreman won the crown Jan. 22, 1972, in Kingston, Jamaica by knocking out Joe Frazier. He lost the title to Ali in October 1974 in Zaire.

He won a gold medal in the Olympics in Mexico City in 1968 and won fame for waving a tiny American flag in the ring at the time other when some other black American medal winners made defiant gestures during the awards ceremonies.

AV beats Falcons

A pair of Mike Krikorians vie

Anyone not familiar with the Amador Valley and Foothill high school baseball teams who glanced at the scorebook of Friday's East Bay Athletic League tilt between the Dons and Falcons would think the same pitcher hurled for both teams.

After all, how often are you going to see two different pitchers named Mike Krikorian hurl against each other?

But that was the case in Friday contest at Foothill which Amador Valley won 3-2.

It was the first time the two pitchers (who are not related) hurled against each other. However, they did pitch against each other in Little League games.

Amador's Mike got the better of his Falcon rival this time, hurling 12 strikeouts and allowing only six hits. He walked two batters.

The Falcons' Krikorian didn't pitch a bad game himself, allowing only one walk and just two earned runs.

Both pitchers went the distance.

Besides the name coincidence the game itself was an unusual one. It was stopped for 10 minutes in the fourth inning while a brief rain storm past overhead.

Amador Valley got on the scoreboard first in the opening stanza.

Second baseman Kurt Hall opened the game with a double. Mike Connolly and Chris Deprater each flied out but designated hitter Rob Wicks belted a single to drive in Hall with the initial run.

The Dons added a second run in the third stanza on a single by Connolly, a ground-ball out and another single by Wicks, who had three hits on the day.

Foothill came right back in its half of the third .

Doug Stevenson opened with a single but Barry Kortan struck out. Then three straight errors brought Stevenson in with the first Falcon run.

Sam Sisneroz had a chance to put Foothill ahead but flied out to right fielder George Ellard who threw home to catcher Mike Hoff who tagged Danny Wilkes attempting to score.

Amador Valley scored its final run in the fouth inning.

After Hoff struck out to open the inning Sam Jorgensen hit a hard grounder over the head of third baseman Stevenson. A walk to Bob Koopman and a single by Hall brought in Jorgensen.

Then fate struck again against the Falcons.

In the Foothill half of the fifth Kortan opened with a crashing double to center and Wilkes followed with a short single. Danny stole second to put the tieing run in scoring position. Monte Winn grounded back to Krikorian and Chris Neves struck out, eliminating some of the pressure from Krikorian's shoulders. However. Sisneroz then belted a single to center field which scored pinch runner Dave Girrard (who had gone in for Kortan). But) Wilkes was against tagged out by Hoff, this time several feet in front of home plate.

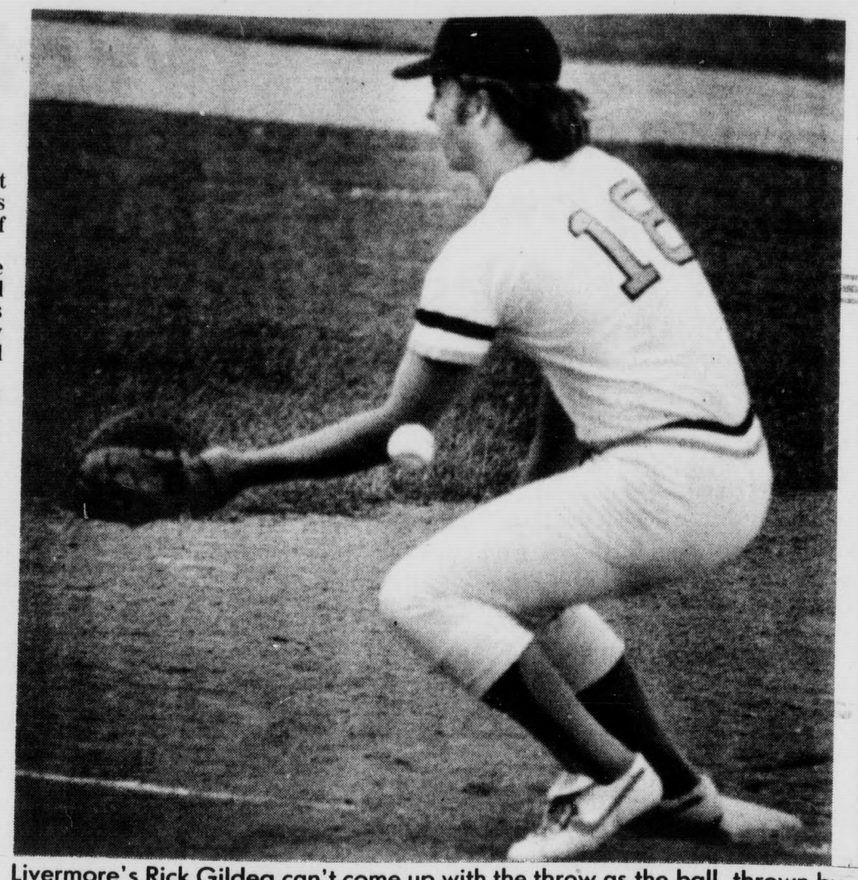

Krikorian then got the Falcons out 1-2-3 the final two innings and the Dons had their fifth victory against six losses. Foothill is 1-11.

Despite the gutty job turned in by the Dons' Krikorian, Amador Valley coach Don Bush didn't think it was one of his better efforts.

"He's had better control this season," Bush said frankly. "However, although he threw a lot of pitches he was able to come back and get the batters out."

It was Krikorian's fourth EBAL win against two losses. His Falcon namesake is 0-5 in EBAL competition.

Livermore's Rick Gildea can't come up with the throw as the ball, thrown by catcher Rick Wood, bounced in front of him. Scenes like these were familiar in Cowboy 7-0 loss to Monte Vista.

Monte Vista slams helpless 'Pokes

Not much more could go wrong for a baseball tam.

Livermore High suffred from bad hops and bad breaks Friday afternoon as Monte Vista stayed alive in the East Bay Athletic League baseball race with a 7-1 win in Livermore.

The Cowboys, losers of their last three games and now 6-6 in EBAL play, committed five errors and gave up seven unearned runs in the game, while the Mustangs were always in the right place at the right time.

One stinging line drive Cary Dean hit by with the bags loaded turned into a double play, and a bases-loaded, nobody out rally in the second inning was erased by another double play as MV hurler and winner Brad Miller escaped trouble for five innings to pick up his fifth win in six outings.

Two singles by Dave Dearborn, a one-bagger from Rick Gildea and Pat Powles' double down the right-field line off of reliever Craig Robinson were the only 'Poke hits of the afternoon.

Miller was pulled after five by Mpstang coach George Cockerton, perhaps saving him for the showdown with EBAL leader San Ramon on Tuesday.

Livermore junior pitcher Jeff Perry was knocked for five runs in the second and two in the third, but none should have scored at all.

In the second, Tony Adams fanned with one out, but got to first when the ball slipped by catcher Rick Wood. Miller hit a possible double play grounder to short that was booted by Dean. Ken Krey singled in the first run, while Steve Jayko plated another when Dean couldn't handle a throw at scond from Bockover.

Krey was thrown out trying to steal third, but Kevin Jones walked to keep the rally alive. Mike Cockerton brought home both Jayko and Jones when he looped a high fly to right field that fell in front of Bob Tarte for a triple, the ball getting by him. Cockerton scored on Greg Bisbee's single to make it 5-0.

In the third, Perry surrendered a leadoff walk to Ted Helgens but he was thrown out trying to steal. Adams flied to left for the second out, but Miller reached again when his infield grounder slipped through third-baseman Dearborn.

Perry then had control problems, walking Krey and Jayko to load 'em up for a line-shot double to left-center field by Jones, scoring two runs and giving the 'Stangs a safe 7-0 advantage.

EBAL softball

Granada whips SR

There are some things that are more important than the senior prom. To nine women from Granada High School, the only thing could be softball.

In a game that lasted 2:45, an in Candlestick Park-like weather conditions, the Granada Matadors blew away the San Ramon Wolves 16-3 in East Bay Athletic League action Friday.

Despite the fact that the big dance was only hours way, the Matadors played like they wanted to stay all night. It was a game of hit and run, which Granada did from the fourth inning on. They had 16 runs on 21 hits.

Amidst cries of, "The wind, watch the ball," by coach Jan Schoenicke, the Mat's sharp-eyed deFense held the Wolves to nine hits and three runs.

Granada pitcher Lynn Bousliman should be MVP of the game. Not only did she pitch like a superstar, she chalked up 3 hits, a double, and batted in three runs. Shortstop Bittye Vierra played a fine defensive game and accumulated two hits, three RBI's, and powered a centerfield homer in the sixth. Third baseman Joni Tucker was another authoritaive player with three hits , one a triple, and one RBI. The only Mat that didn't have an RBI was second baseman Paula Soto. But she compensated for that by lining a home run to left field also in the sixth.

Both pitchers seemed to be the most determined players on the field. Under pressure from a bases loaded situation four times in the sixth, Wolves pitcher Janet Raventos didn't walk anyone into the plate. She gave up a total of six walks and struck-out two . She also added one hit and two RBI's.

In other EBAL play, Amador Valley took an early lead in a 17-2 victory over Foothill. The Dons top the league with a 6-1 record, while Foothill dropped to 3-4. The winning pitcher was Pam Rainsdon.

Grizzlies nixed by raindrops

California High School's baseball team hasn't been drenched with luck this season. Water, yes, luck? — forget it.

The Grizzlies, who started the season as the East Bay's number two ranked team and have fallen to sixth in the East Bay Athletic league with a 3-6 record, endured their second rain-out yesterday.

The first time the skies dumped on the Grizzlies was well in advance of a game with league-leading San Ramon , a contest Cal might have welcomed relief from..

But yesterday, the Grizzlies lost a very probable win when a tiny finger of clouds slipped through Dublin Canyon and cut the Grizzlies and Dublin Gaels off from the rest of the EBAL. Leading 8-4 after te fourth, Cal watched in dissapointment as the umpires finally gave up, after a 12-minute delay, and called the rain-soaked contest.

So, they'll replay it from the start, taking away that four-run Grizzly advantage and leaving the Gaels with a welcome clean slate. Tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 has been settled upon for the replay.

Before yesterday's instant monsoon, the late-season contest between the pair of entertaining also-rans had turned into a feast for offensive gourmets.

Cal's Tyler Laurie had tripled to drive in three runs while Dan Nelson singled in a pair and stole a base. Chuck Cary had knocked in a run with a single and swiped a base while brother Bret Cary, who was the leading pitcher, slapped a single.

On the Gaels side of the scorebook, catcher Mike Hack had rapped three hits and stole a base, Sean Mays had a two-run triple while Paul Gordon, who had an rbi, Bob Richardson, Gary Rader, who plated a run, and starting and trailing pitcher John Downing singled.

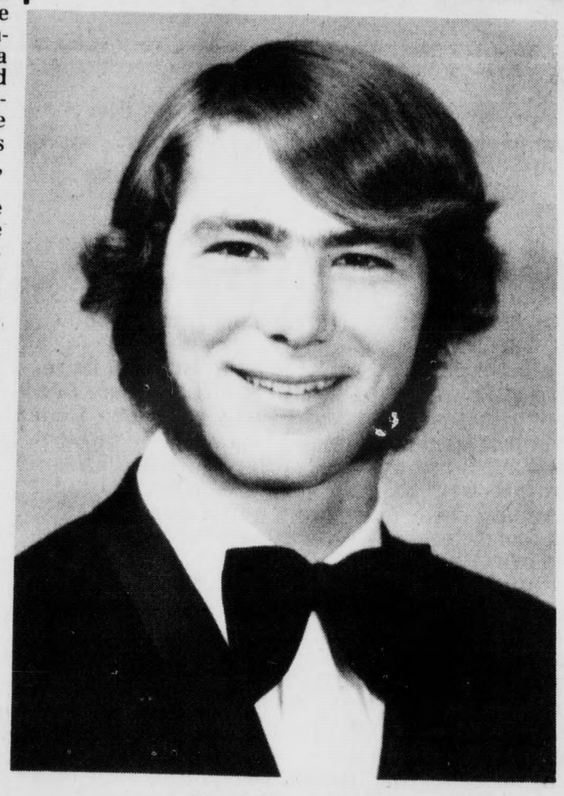

As he stood watching the enigmatic umpires flop back and forth between ordering the Gael fielders to get back on the diamond or making their final decision, Cal co-coach Bob Benatar could only shake his soggy cap.

"We sure haven't had much luck," he agreed, watching a potential victory literally go down the drain. "Plus, the psychological factor of being the favorites hurt. It's not that the kids got big-headed, it just put a lot of added pressure on."

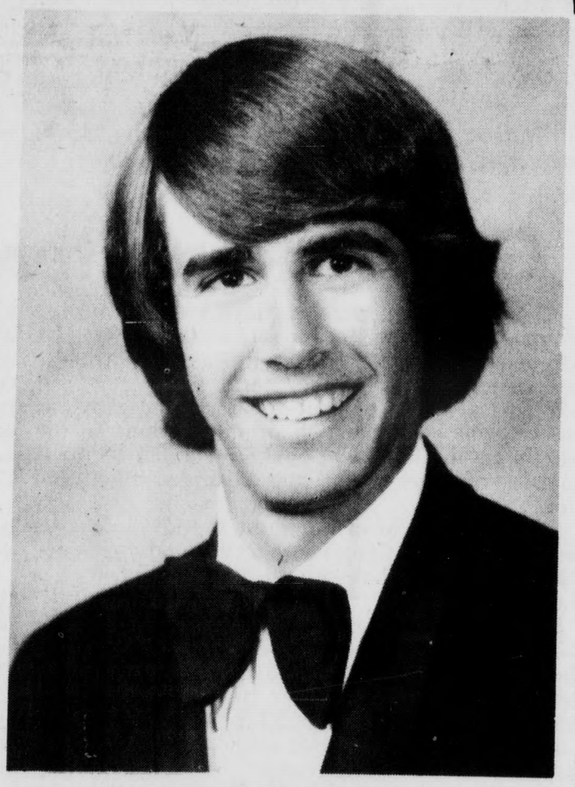

An unlikely, but devastating combo: chance, a gaggle of sportwriters and the fickle finger of the weatherman. Who says good things come in threes?

If rate falls, you still lose

"If you can qualify for buying a home, don't wait a year or so for 'better times,' buy now," said Bill Sage, president of the Multiple Listing Service of the Contra Costa Board of Realtors.

"It could cost you money to wait for the interest rate to drop, as well as several hundred dollars in equity accumulation. Even if rates should drop by one-fourth or even one-half per cent, potential home owners who waited as a way to save on monthly payments may come up losers."

He made the observations in connection with Private Property Week celebrated by home owners and the real estate industry April 17-23.

He noted some local statistics for 1976:

During the year, the average price of a home in the Central Contra Costa County area rose nearly 17 per cent over 1975 prices. And for the first three months of 1977, the average price has risen another 28 per cent over the same period last year.

A constant increase in the value or cost of existing homes has been the rule here and nationally. Over the years, real estate has been the only form of investment that has more than kept up with inflation.

Sage cited the following example as proof of the importance of buying a home now:

1. Assuming that one-half per cent drop in the interest rate, the increased cost of the home resulting from a year's wait would eat up the so-called saving and take more money besides.

2. Assume that the home seeker purchased a home today at the area's average price of $75,000. Interest on a $60,000, 25-year mortgage in the first year would total about $5,400.

3. That is based upon today's prevailing rate of nine per cent. But what would happen if the interest rate were to drop by one-half per cent, while the cost of the home rose the same percentage as in 1976?

4. It would mean lost dollars. With the same per cent as down payment, the family that waited would pay about $5,700 in interest in the first year of ownership, or $590 more than the current interest rate would have meant.

5. Over the life of the mortgage, that would mean a total of about $12,500 more. That one year wait also would cost him the opportunity to claim the interest and taxes on a home as an income tax deduction, and gain the equity that would have built up in the waiting period.

The income tax saving on today's average-priced home in Central Contra Costa County would be about $1,850 for many families.

"There is no guarantee that the interest rate will decrease in the year ahead; it could increase," Sage said, and presently, there is evidence that mortgage interest rates are increasing.

"If that should happen, the additional cost to the potential home buyer again could delay the date for his realizing his dream of home ownership."

Bilking builders prompt new downpayment law

By NORMA PETERSON

Stories about unscrupulous contractors who will take your money, do a halfway job, then run, are not unique.

But several years ago some companies in the South Bay section of Los Angeles went too far. They bilked more than 100 families out of nearly $3 million when they required full payment for project contracts, then absconded before the work was completed.

The result was legislation that limits the amount of California contractor may require as a down payment to $100 or 1 per cent of the total price of the contract. Additional payment schedules may be arranged, but each amount may represent only the value of work already done.

In lieu of the above, a contractor may elect to furnish you with a bond approved by the State Registrar of Contractors. Under this alternative, larger down payments may be requested to pay for materials needed to get a project started. It is not as desirable to you, the consumer, as the pay-as-work-is-done arrangement, but the bond does guarante you will be reimbursed for work that is not completed. Be sure you receive a copy of the bond if this payment method is chosen.

Other information must be included in the contract: the name, address and license number of the contractor; approximate starting and completion dates of projects; a description of all work to be done and materials to be used; the payment schedule; and the address of the Contractors' License Board to which inquiries and complaints may be directed.

Another provision that deserves your attention states simply that the contract shall include "any other matters agreed to by the parties."

Since the contractor will prepare the document, he will be sure to protect his interests. That takes care of one party.

You need to keep in mind this is a two-party transaction. Therefore, if there is anything you want clarified, modified, or added, speak up.

The Contractors' Board recommends inclusion of the following provisions if they are not already present:

— Building permits will be acquired by the contractor, and all work and materials wwll meet local building coil standards.

— Any "extras" or substitutions must be approved in writing by both you and the contractor.

— The contractor carries property damage, workman's compensation, and personal liability insurance.

— Lien releases will be provided to you from subcontractors and workmen before you make a final payment. This protects against their holding you responsible if the contractor doesn't pay them.

The contract should also incorporate anything else the contractor promises orally, including guarantees of workmanship and materials.

If you insist upon signing only home improvement contracts that comply with state law and include the recommended provisions, you will have exercised good leverage in driving away the fast-buck operator and gaining the respect of the conscientious craftsman.

B of A announces 2nd mortgage loan

Bank of America announced it is offering a new loan program designed to help California homeowners use the growing equity in their home for financial needs. Called Home Equity Loan, the program enables qualified homeowners to borrow from $5,000 to $25,000, up to a maximum of 80 per cent of the bank's appraised value of the property, less the amount owed on the original loan. The loan is secured by a second deed of trust on the home and can be paid back in equal monthly installments. Borrowers are charged interest calculated daily on a simple interest basis on the declining balance. There is no penalty for prepayment — the sooner the loan is paid off, the lower the total interest charges.

"Californians are well aware of the increasing value of the equity in their homes," said J.A. Carrera, executive vice president of the bank's California Division. "They are looking for ways to use their equity to their financial advantage.

Carter's energy plan and housing

The current energy crunch may be the stimulant needed to rebuild our nation' cities, according to Rep. Garry Brown (R-Mich.).

Brown made that prediction and raised some questions about the President's proposed energy program in an address before Realtors at the National Association of Realtors' annual May meetings held earlier this month.

If the high cost of gasoline and expensive insulation standards for new housing have the likely inhibiting effect on suburban growth, Brown said, rehabilitation of existing housing in our cities would be the only option remaining.

While the Carter program has essentially the same objectives and approaches as the Ford program, Brown said, the principle Carter strategy is to discourage the use of energy through financial disincentives.

An excise tax at the wellhead gradually will increase until the price of domestic oil, before it ever reaches the gas pump where an additional tax of up to 50 cents a gallon could be applied over the next 10 years.

This increase in the cost of energy may have a serious impact on mortgage finance concepts, he said. Until now, the cost of utilities has not been considered in determing mortgage eligibility. However, as the cost of utilities becomes a major factor in the home owner's monthly payment obligations, lenders will have to consider them in reviewing an applicant's loan eligibility, Brown said.

While the President has proposed performance standards of energy efficiency for new construction, Brown said, it is not yet known whether achievement of such standards would be voluntary or mandatory.

Brown cited several instances of a lack of balance in government's approach to solving problems. Nuclear energy, for example, would seem to hold the most hope for a virtually limitless energy supply, Brown said, but a concern about nuclear accidents and disposal of nuclear wastes has caused heavy opposition to further development.

"What is lacking," he said, "is a proper balance between our nation's needs and the problems that meeting those needs might bring about."

Brown also said he was puzzled over what he sees as the conflict between the President's proposal to increase coal production and his support of the current bill to curb strip mining.

"The President has said we should increase our production of coal by 400 million tons," he said. "however, the strip mining bill which he supports is estimated to decrease coal production by as much as 100 million tons. Which proposal does he really favor."

Valley Realty's third move is the best yet

Ground breaking for Valley Realty's new sales office here took place April 6 and it is somewhat of a milestone for the 24 office company.

It was in Dublin that Valley Realty had its beginning in 1965 in a miniscule weathered relic of a building from pioneer days. This marks the third move for the Dublin office, with each move significantly improving both the location as well as the design of the facility.

This newest facility will be located on the corner of Amador Valley Boulevard and Starward Drive.

The Dublin office has been managed by Jerry Moon since 1971 and, in addition to Jerry, there will be 20 sales associates occupying this deluxe facility. There will be eight private and 13 semi-private offices to house Moon and his staff.

The groundbreaking ceremony came at the climax of another outstanding first quarter finish for Valley Realty. In the three months ending March, 1977, Valley Realty sold 1,275 homes in their 20 Bay Area offices. This is the best quarter ever in this history of the company. But from the looks of the economy and the business, that record could likely be broken in the coming quarter.

Carter leaders propose Social Security revamp

WASHINGTON — The Carter Administration, seeking to bolster the financially troubled Social Security system, will urge higher Social Security taxes and an unprecedented use of general tax funds, administration sources said Saturday.

Sources said the administration will recommend major changes in the Social Security taxing system, including:

— Making employers pay taxes on the full amount of each worker's wages rather than only on an initial portion.

— By the mid-1980s, raising the level of that initial portion on which workers pay Social Security taxes beyond the automatic increases already scheduled.

— Diverting general income tax revenues to pay Social Security benefits when the national unemployment rate exceeds 6 per cent. — Accelerating scheduled automatic increases in the Social Security tax rate.

The Carter Administration is expected to give its views Monday on how to bail out the Social Security trust funds that otherwise are expected to go broke about the time Carter's term expires. The trust funds, presently financed by that deduction marked "FICA" on nearly every wage-earner's paycheck, are the sole source of money paid out monthly to many of the nation's retirees, widows and disabled pensioners. If these trust funds give out, the benefit checks stop.

Of course, no one seriously believes the administration or Congress would let that happen, but Congress twice rejected former President Gerald R. Ford's proposal to shore up the endangered funds by increasing the FICA tax rates. (FICA stands for Federal Insurance Contributions Act, the original Social Security law.)

Administration sources said the transfer of general revenue funds to the Social Security system would only come into play when unemployment is over 6 per cent. Such a transfer was said to represent Social Security taxes lost due to high joblessness. For example, when the jobless rate is 7 per cent as it is currently, the transfer of money would involve the difference between the amount of FICA taxes that would have been generated if unemployment was 6 per cent and the actual revenues produced when joblessness is 7 per cent.

The total Social Security payroll tax rate is currently 11.7 per cent — half of it, 5.85 per cent, paid by the worker, and the other half by his or her employer.

The amount of a worker's annual earnings subject to this payroll tax reached $16,500 this year under an automatic adjustment mechanism in the law.

Thus, for a worker at the upper limit of this $16,500 socalled wage base, it means a Social Security tax payment of $965.25 by the worker while the boss pays a matching $965.25.

Top seller for UCB is announced

Top achiever at the Livermore offices of United California Brokers for the month of March was Betty Rotsten, who was named "March Salesperson of the Month" by Herb Singleton, co-principal of the aggressive real estate brokerage firm.

Mrs. Rotsten, who recently celebrated her 23rd wedding anniversary, has been a resident of California for 24 years since leaving her native North Carolina. She devoted her time to her home and four children until several years ago, when she decided to embark on a career in real estate and utilize her lifelong enjoyment of working with other people. She joined United California Brokers in February of this year when the Livermore branch was opened. She is a volunteer for the American Cancer Society as a facilitator for the nonsmoking clinic, an avid jogger and knitter, and enjoys relaxing at home with her two dachshunds.

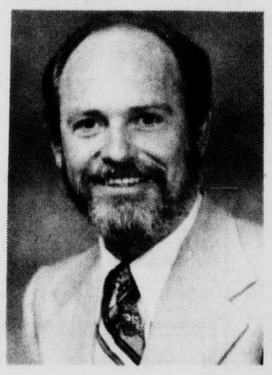

Betty displays her craft

Women

A new evening consciousness-raising group for women beginning Monday, May 11 has been announced by the Tri-Valley Chapter of the National Organization for Women.

Led by Ilse Duncan, the group will meet weekly for eight sessions at Amador Valley High School in Pleasanton, Room F-1 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Consciousness-raising is not a rap group, an encounter group or therapy group. It does provide a safe, supportive atmosphere where women can share personal experiences and grow together. All valley women are encouraged to participate.

Lute music

A concert of 16th and 18th Century music on the Renaissance and Baroque lutes will be presented Tuesday, May 10 at the Chabot College Little Theater in Hayward. The public may attend the 11 a.m. program free of charge.

Performer is Stephen Toombs, Chabot College instructor, who did graduate work as a musical historian at Washington University in St. Louis, Mo. He will devote part of his concert to a discussion of program selections, and the history of the lute.

Play begins at 1:30 p.m. for the whist party sponsored by Pleasanton Druid Circle No. 43 Thursday, May 12 at the Pleasanton Gardens recreation room on Kottinger Avenue. Donation of 50 cents includes refreshments and prizes. Hostesses will be Ida Rabello, Frances Cortez, Helen Marian and Ramona Miller. The public is invited.

Collectors

The public is welcome to the May 11 meeting of the Livermore Avon Collectors who are planning to enter displays in the Alameda County Fair. The 7:30 p.m. meeting is at the Livermore Library. Refreshments will be served.

Several members of the club are finalizing travel plans for the Avon Collectors national convention at Hollywood, Fla.

ACAMR

Dorothy Svets, senior recreation supervisor of LARPD, will address the Twin Valley Chapter of ACAMR on summer programs for the handicapped Monday, May 9. The public is welcome to the 8 p.m. meeting at the Vinwood Lodge, 35 Fenton St., Livermore. For information on the Alameda County Association for the Mentally Retarded (ACAMR) contact Jan Pinney at 846-4944.

ILWU

International Longshore and Warehousemen's Union Auxiliary President Dawn Rutter received the final convention badge given a speaker by long-time ILWU President Harry Bridges. Bridges will retire after the national convention in Seattle, Wash.

The local auxiliary will host its annual Founder's Day dinner May 28 at Spenger's Fish Grotto in Berkeley.

Xi Rho

Joanne Johnson presides at the May 10 meeting for Xi Rho Omega Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi at 8 p.m. Hostess will be Carolyn Velure, with assistance from Anita Hammond and Thea Shepard. Installation of officers will be the order of the evening.

Sonya Richards and Sue Ross were chosen Girl of the Year by the chapter at the recent Beta Sigma Phi Founder's Day dinner.

WE DON'T WANT YOU TO LIKE US JUST FOR OUR BODIES

Sure we have one of the hottest selling automobiles to come down the pike in years. And sure some dealers would get a little complacent with the success story that Honda exhibits. And right again, some car dealers exhibit this successful arrogance by giving their clientel less service than they deserve.

But at Walnut Creek Honda we realize that repeat business is what really counts. A satisfied customer will be back year after year. That's why at Walnut Creek Honda we want you to like us for more than our beautiful cars. We want you to like us for the way we do business.
